MISHAWAKA — A private audience March 29 at the Vatican was cause for great celebration for a local religious order.

Mother Maria Theresia Bonzel, foundress of the Sisters of St. Francis of Perpetual Adoration, was recognized for heroic virtue and named “Venerable” by Pope Benedict XVI. That is considered a step toward being named a saint, paving the way for possible beatification and canonization.

The Sisters, whose provincial house is located in Mishawaka, say they have been praying for Mother Theresia’s cause for sainthood since she was recommended in 1961. They heard the news in an unexpected way, waiting for the Chrism Mass to begin last Monday evening, Father Daryl Rybicki, pastor of Corpus Christi Parish, broke the story.

“He scared me to death!” recalls Sister Angela Mellady, provincial superior. “He came up to me and said, ‘Congratulations!’ I said, ‘For what?’ and he said, ‘Your foundress!’ What was funny is we just had a community meeting and I jokingly said to the sisters I was expecting we wouldn’t have to hear the news on (the news outlet) Zenit!”

The Sisters noted that with modern technology, once Vatican meetings end, information can spread quickly.

ARCOLA — Bishop Kevin C. Rhoades greeted parishioners at St. Patrick Parish in Arcola on Easter Sunday saying, “It is such a joy to be here with you.”

He confided that he had long planned to visit one of his new diocese’s “ordinary” parishes on Easter Sunday. And the St. Patrick community turned out to welcome him with full houses at both the church and the adjoining parish hall in response.

Bishop Rhoades began his homily by reminding his listeners of the Easter story with words that he said have formed the core of the Church’s teaching throughout the centuries, familiar words describing the Passion, Death and Resurrection of Our Lord.

But Easter Sunday celebrates the key moment, the Resurrection, he said, and the message is precisely the same as that proclaimed by St. Peter so long ago. Just as Jesus was buried and rose from the dead, today his faithful people also rise from sin through Baptism into new life.

Bishop Rhoades noted that Pope Benedict XVI recently affirmed that Jesus lives and walks before us as one who is alive so we can walk the path of life. We rejoice because Jesus belongs to the living, not to the dead, he pointed out.

The bishop remarked that more than 500 people joined the Catholic Church during the Easter Vigil, proving that the Catholic faith is alive and well in the Diocese of Fort Wayne-South Bend. Most received the sacraments of Baptism, Confirmation and the Holy Eucharist.

Bishop Rhoades reflected on the sacraments in connection with the holiday. Easter is a good day to think about the effects of Baptism, he said, as we walk with Christ on our journey toward lasting joy. We receive the Holy Spirit in Confirmation so as to bear witness to him. But the climax of the Easter celebra-
Jesus is alive and He is the light of the world

IN TRUTH AND CHARITY

BY BISHOP KEVIN C. RHoades

The peace and joy of the Risen Jesus be with you! We are now in the season of Easter, a celebration of 50 days which ends on Pentecost Sunday. I hope you all had a happy and blessed Easter Sunday. Prayerful best wishes to all who were baptized and/or received the sacraments of Confirmation and the Holy Eucharist at the Easter Vigil! It is a beautiful sign of the vibrant life of the Church in our diocese that nearly 500 adults were baptized or received into the full communion of the Catholic Church this Easter.

This is the most joyful season of the liturgical year. Throughout these 50 days, we celebrate the glorious mystery of the Resurrection of the Lord Jesus. The Paschal Candle stands lit in our sanctuaries during the Easter season, a visible reminder that Jesus is alive and that He is the light of the world.

Holy Week

My first Holy Week as bishop of Fort Wayne-South Bend was a memorable one. I was very edified to see our two cathedrals filled to capacity for the two beautiful Chrism Masses during Holy Week. I was blessed to celebrate Mass on Wednesday of Holy Week at Holy Cross House in South Bend, where many retired Holy Cross priests and brothers live. It was inspiring for me to meet so many of these devoted men, many of whom have served in the foreign missions, in Bangladesh and other places around the world.

The beauty of the liturgies during the Easter Triduum remains in my thoughts these days. I celebrated the Evening Mass of the Lord’s Supper at St. Matthew Cathedral and the Good Friday Celebration of the Lord’s Passion and the Easter Vigil at Immaculate Conception Cathedral. I thank Msgr. Heintz, Msgr. Schulte, the choirs of both cathedrals, and all who served in any way at these sacred liturgies. In a special way, I thank Mr. James Fitzpatrick for serving as master of ceremonies.

Easter Sunday

As was my custom in Harrisburg, I celebrated Easter Sunday Mass in one of the other parish churches of the diocese, St. Patrick’s in Arcola. This parish, just 25 minutes or so from my residence, was a great place to celebrate Mass on Easter Sunday. I thank Father Alex Dodrai, the pastor, and all the people of St. Patrick’s for their warm welcome. After the beautiful liturgy, I had the opportunity to greet many parishioners who were present. When I entered the parish hall after Mass, I was surprised to be greeted by a group of children who sang a beautiful prayer of blessing for me. I met parishioners who are lifelong members of St. Patrick’s and some who even had ancestors who built the church back in the 19th century. St. Patrick’s is truly an historic parish, and also one that is growing today with many young families. The beautiful church stands in the middle of open fields. It was a breezy and sunny day, perfect weather for Easter Sunday.

Easter season

We have completed our Lenten penance. I hope the Lenten season was a time of grace for you. The season of Easter is also a time of grace. It is a time of new life, not only in the world of nature, but also in our spiritual lives. Today I was meditating on a passage from the first letter of St. Peter: I offer these words of Peter for your reflection:

“Praised be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, He who in His great mercy gave us new birth; a birth unto hope which draws its life from the Resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead; a birth to an imperishable inheritance, incapable of fading or defilement, which is kept in heaven for you who are guarded with God’s power through faith; a birth to a salvation which stands ready to be revealed in the last days. There is cause for rejoicing here. You may for a time have to suffer the distress of many trials; but this is so that your faith, which is more precious than the passing splendor of fire-tried gold, may by its genuineness lead to praise, glory and honor when Jesus Christ appears. Although you have never seen Him, you love Him, and without seeing you now believe in Him, and rejoice with inexpressible joy touched with glory because you are achieving faith’s goal, your salvation” — 1 Peter 1:3-9.

St. Peter encourages us to bear sufferings with joy. He encourages us to cultivate the virtue of hope. In these days of trial for the Church, I find St. Peter’s words consoling and uplifting. They remind us that our hope draws its life from Christ’s Resurrection. The Risen Christ is our hope! We believe in Him and we love Him, even though we have not seen Him. And, yes, we can rejoice because He is our Savior, our Risen Savior. Our faith and our hope are always centered in Him!

During this Easter season, may you experience the grace of the Lord’s Resurrection and new strength in living as His faithful disciples!
Easter Vigil
At the Easter Vigil at the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, Bishop Rhoades began the liturgy with the blessing of the Easter fire and lighting of the Paschal candle.

In his homily he noted, “Our procession into this darkened cathedral behind the Paschal candle symbolized our journey of faith through darkness into light, the light of Christ. Indeed all of human history, like the Israelites’ journey through the desert to the Promised Land, is a journey seeking light, seeking paradise, seeking true happiness and peace. Where do we find it? The answer is a Person: the Lord Jesus Christ crucified and risen from the dead.”

Bishop Rhoades referred to St. Augustine referred to the Easter Vigil as “the mother of all vigils” in which “we commemorate that holy night when our Lord rose from the dead.”

He highlighted three aspects about the vocation of disciples of the Risen Lord: Number one: Following Christ means being attentive to His words. Number two: Following Christ means obeying His commandments. And number three: Following Christ means loving His Mystical Body, the Church.

Bishop Rhoades celebrated the sacraments of initiation: Baptism, Confirmation and Holy Eucharist at the vigil. At the cathedral parish, four were baptized, and five received Confirmation and Holy Eucharist.

Bishop Rhoades spoke in the homily, “On this holy night, our catechumens will pass from death to life through the waters of Baptism. All of us who already received Baptism will renew our baptismal promises. Our candidates and catechumens will be strengthened by the gifts of the Holy Spirit in Confirmation and nourished by Christ’s Body and Blood in the Eucharist. These wonderful Easter sacraments help us to follow Christ more closely. We rejoice that the Lord has risen from the dead and that He shares with us the gift of eternal life.”

Chriasm Mass
Earlier in Holy Week, celebrations included the Chriasm Mass, first in South Bend at St. Matthew Cathedral on Monday and then in Fort Wayne at the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception on Tuesday.

At Chriasm Mass, Bishop Rhoades thanked Bishop John M. D’Arcy for “your presence and for your ecumenical outreach that our ministry here in our diocese.” And in South Bend, Bishop Rhoades also thanked Father David Tyson, the provincial Superior of the Congregation of Holy Cross and all the Holy Cross fathers and Holy Cross brothers, and all the religious sisters present.

Priests renew their commitment to priesty service at the Mass. With priests and diocesan seminarians present, Bishop Rhoades said in his homily, “As many of you know, one of my highest priorities as your new bishop is promoting priestly vocations. This should in no way be perceived as a neglect of the great need for an increase of vocations to the consecrated life, which is also a high priority and very close to my heart. Nor should it be perceived as a lack of attention to the great dignity and beauty of the vocation of marriage, the promotion of which is also one of my highest priorities. But the Chriasm Mass is particularly focused on the gift of the ministerial priesthood, and thus I am focusing this evening on the priestly vocation. I am convinced in the bottom of my heart that God is calling many young men through our diocese to the ministerial priesthood, to become living icons of Jesus Christ, our great High Priest, the Head and Shepherd of the Church.”

The Chriasm Mass includes the Rite of the Blessing of Oils and Consecration of the Christ. These oils are used for the newly baptized, the anointing of the sick and for those to be confirmed. The sacred chrism is also used at priestly and episcopal ordinations.

Holy Thursday
Bishop Rhoades presided over his first Holy Thursday Mass at St. Matthew Cathedral in South Bend. He called on all to recall the eternal sacrifice and love of Jesus Christ. Bishop Rhoades’ homily spoke of remembering, “the Last Supper, the beginning of the drama of the Paschal Mystery, when our Lord instituted the sacraments of the Holy Eucharist and Baptism. These works of mercy, these works of love, are the beginning of the Paschal Mystery. There is no more coin- cidence nor an accidentalaside that Jesus kneel before the Apostles and washes their dirty feet.

“When Jesus came into the world, God descended and became a servant, a slave, in taking on, or assuming, our human nature.” Bishop Rhoades continued. “When his hour had come, He showed us again the humility of His Incarnation which now reached its climax in the humility of the Redemption. This is why He had come. His Redemptive Passion was the very reason for His Incarnation. In the washing of the disciples’ feet, the entire mystery of Jesus Christ is expressed. In this, what redemption means becomes visible.”

Bishop Rhoades spoke how God continues to wash our dirty feet: “He cleanses us in the sacraments of Baptism and Penance. He is continually on His knees at our feet, carrying out for us the service of a slave, the service of purification, which makes us capable of receiving God’s grace. Why else would He say to the protesting Peter, ‘Unless I wash you, you will have no inheritance with me.’”

“We are sinners — we need His cleansing,” Bishop Rhoades said. “That’s why Jesus tells Peter that His washing of his feet was necessary for him to share in Jesus’ inheritance, which is eternal life. Jesus is referring to the necessity of His death. He tells us that this brings us, our heritage with Him and cleanses us of sins. And, of course, this becomes actual for us through the purifying sacraments of Baptism and Penance.”

Good Friday
Good Friday Service opened in solemnity as Bishop Rhoades, along with transitional Deacon Andrew Budzinski, Msgr. Robert Schulte, vicar general of the diocese and retired Father Paul Bueter, processed to the unadorned sanctuary of the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception in Fort Wayne. The procession proceeded themselves before the altar as the congregation knelt in prayer. Following the reading of the Passion narrative, the bishop, in his homily, told the filled-to-capacity cathedral that Good Friday was the only day of the Church year that Mass was not celebrated, but … “We gather to meditate on the Passion and Death of Our Lord. … On this day we contemplate Jesus with His arms extended on the cross.”

He went on to describe the crucifixion scene and reminded the faithful that Jesus never lost His freedom or true dignity as He followed His Father’s will. “He hung on the cross courageously, intent on fulfilling the mission His Father entrusted to Him, the mission of redemption. He freely embraced in His human will the Father’s will,” Bishop Rhoades continued. “On the cross, He trusted in His Father. He endured the insults and calumnies of His persecutors. And, most remarkably, He forgave them. He never stopped exercising His ministry of mercy.”

Jesus, during His ministry and Passion, said Bishop Rhoades, teaches us to love even our enemies. “He teaches us by his example what He had earlier taught in words to the disciples: ‘Love your enemies, do good to those who hate you, bless those who curse you, pray for those who abuse you.’ Luke 6:27-28. Have you ever wondered what the cross would be like if we Christians really obeyed those words?” questioned the bishop.

Bishop Rhoades went on to contemplate Mary’s pain at watching helplessly as her Son died upon the cross. He said, “On the cross, Jesus entrusted John and all of us, indeed all Christians, to Mary and her maternal care when He said, ‘Woman, behold your son.’ We can always turn to her, especially in times of pain and sorrow. Our Lady of Sorrows was there at the foot of the cross and she is near to us at the foot of the cross in our lives. She is our spiritual mother, a beautiful gift to us from Jesus on His cross. John took Mary into his home. I hope we all do the same.”

Good Friday, which fell this year on the fifth anniversary of the death Pope John Paul II, is the day when Jesus accomplished His mission. “He had accomplished the Father’s will. He accomplished our redemption. He loved us to the end. And that love revealed so dramatically in the crucifixion has brought the greatest blessing to humanity: Reconciliation with God, salvation, redemption. The truth of this victory of love would become evident on the third day when Jesus rose from the dead. That’s why we call this day Good Friday,” said Bishop Rhoades.

After explaining that veneration of the cross was not an empty gesture but a sign of our love for Jesus who suffered and died for us, Bishop Rhoades concluded by saying, “Jesus said from the cross, ‘I thirst.’ He still thirsts — He thirsts for our love.”

Deacon Budzinski, who is preparing to be ordained into the priesthood this summer, chanted the General Intercessions to which the bishop responded in prayer. Following the procession of the cross, Bishop Rhoades removed his outer vestments and shoes to venerate the cross, after which the congregation followed. The cross was then laid at the foot of the altar before the Eucharistic celebration and closing prayer completed the solemn ceremony. Bishop Rhoades and the attending clergy processed out of the sunlit cathedral in silence.

My daughter, tell the whole world about my inconceivable (138) mercy, I desire that the Feast of Mercy (139) be a refuge and shelter for all souls, and especially for poor sinners. On that day the very depths of my tender mercy are open. I pour out a whole ocean of graces upon those souls who approach the fount of my mercy. The soul that will go to confession and receive Holy Communion shall obtain complete forgiveness of sins and punishment. On that day all the divine floodgates through which graces flow are opened. Let no soul fear to draw near to me. Even though its sins be scarlet. My mercy is so great that no mind, be it of man or of angel, will be able to fathom it throughout all eternity. Everything that exists has come forth from the very depths of my most tender mercy. Every soul in its relation to me will contemplate my love and mercy throughout eternity. The Feast of Mercy emerged from my very depths of tenderness. (139) It is my desire that it be solemnly celebrated on the first Sunday after Easter. Mankind will not have peace until it turns to the fount of my mercy.

tion often hits the news wire before formal announcements can be sent. Father Rybicki learned the news through his e-mail subscription to the Vatican Information Service. In a daily news release, he noticed a familiar name listed among the seven people the pope had named Venerable.

Sister Angela says the other sisters were “thrilled” when she shared the announcement the next morning, after getting a copy of the news release herself.

“We suspected it was getting closer,” explains Sister Angela, “but to actually read that she was discussed at a meeting with the Holy Father that morning... It was just thrilling!”

Mother Theresia was born Regina Christine Wilhelmine Bonzel on Sept. 17, 1830, in Olpe, Germany. The girl born into a wealthy family had an early desire to follow Christ, according to records provided by the Sisters of St. Francis of Perpetual Adoration. It’s believed she was formed by an intensive prayer life, a great devotion to the Holy Eucharist and a love of St. Francis of Assisi. She entered the Third Order Secular Franciscans in 1850, and became a consecrated religious in 1859. Her entry to the service to the poor did not go unnoticed, and Bishop Konrad Martin asked her to form a congregation devoted to that cause. The Sisters of St. Francis of Perpetual Adoration in Olpe was approved by the Church on July 20, 1863.

Sister Rose Agnes, former superior and longtime archivist at the Mishawaka provincial house, believes Mother Theresia’s devotion to the Eucharist is one of her most heroic virtues, giving her the grace to minister in other areas like education and healthcare.

“She wanted the contemplative life, and that’s why she started the perpetual adoration,” says Sister Rose. “She did that from the beginning with eight hours a day and night! And works of mercy. She looked at everything as a work of mercy... taking care of the poor and neglected children, teaching, nursing... she looked at everything as a work of mercy. She wanted to follow the example of St. Francis, including his love for poverty. She could have had everything, but she gave it up!”

A widespread antecedent reaction in Germany, known as the Kulturkampf, restricted Mother Theresia’s work and the reception of new candidates. As one door closed, another one opened when an American bishop paid her a visit. Mother Theresia quickly accepted Bishop Joseph Dwenger’s invitation to establish a convent within his Diocese of Fort Wayne. That was when the whole northern part of the state was one diocese,” explains Sister Angela. “We came to Lafayette in 1875.”

The sisters were given a small house and a benefactor donated two lots. There, the first building of the present St. Elizabeth Hospital was built. With the rapid expansion of the community, a wing for the convent was added to the hospital in 1905. By 1940, the provincial house in Lafayette extended over a two-block area. The site also included a novitiate, a postulancy, a 350-bed hospital, a training school for nurses, a high school and a college.

“The community kept growing... we eventually ran out of space!” says Sister Rose Agnes, reflecting on how it once seemed like the order might die out in Germany.

“They then came here... Between 1885 and 1896 there were 600 novices. That’s a lot a year!”

In 1943, Bishop John F. Noll dedicated the new provincial house at its current location in Mishawaka. The former Carlisle estate became known as “Mount Alverno” and is currently home to about 80 sisters.

“We’ve added other ecclesial ministries,” explains Sister Angela. “Now, there aren’t as many orphanages. We still are in education in this diocese... the University of Saint Francis, Marian High School and St. Matthew’s School.”

The congregation remains true to the original mission 156 years after Mother Theresia founded the Sisters of St. Francis of Perpetual Adoration.

“The sisters strive to combine the contemplative life with the active through perpetual adoration and works of mercy,” says Sister Rose Agnes. “That was her purpose for founding the congregation.”

Sister Rose Agnes, who speaks German, was quick to e-mail the general of the Order in Germany, Mother Theresia. She had — from a Jesuit priest with access to a computer.

Mother Maria Theresia Bonzel, foundress of the Sisters of St. Francis of Perpetual Adoration, was recognized for heroic virtue and named "Venerable" by Pope Benedict XVI.

First Year of Priests

“Please, God... call one of them, not me!”

As time went by it seemed that those silent prayers had been answered in Jack’s favor. He was happy at Leo High School and then at Purdue University, and when his feet first found the circuitous path, which would take him to the priesthood, it was because he was at the crossroad of proposing to his girlfriend of four years. They had also agreed that as a couple and potential parents, they should take a deeper look at their faith and their responsibilities as parents.

In response to this, Jack became involved with the RCIA at St. Thomas Aquinas Parish in West Lafayette and sponsored a young man who was seeking to be baptized.

Jack’s taste of the faith gave him an extreme hunger for more, taking him to the point where he considered the possibility that maybe doing “Church stuff” full time might not be such a bad life. Within two years, partially due to Jack’s constant excited talk about how much he liked what he was doing at St. Thomas, he and his girlfriend broke up. Was God calling him to be a priest? Some family members heard him talking this way, and believed he was not hearing a call from God, but was merely over reacting to the breakup.

After he had graduated with a degree in electrical engineering, he began working as a software engineer, and was seriously interested in another woman, Becky, a non-Catholic coworker, who was a strong non-denominational Christian.

Together, they had extensive discussions about religion, their relationship, and the undertow that was pulling Jack toward priesthood.

One day they had an epiphany. On the very same day they announced to each other that they had the answer to their problem. Independently, each had arrived at the same conclusion; Jack should enter the seminary. If it were not right for him, he would hate it, get out, and get married.

That didn’t happen. Jack loved his new life and was ordained as a priest by Bishop John M. D’Arcy on Nov. 29, 1997.

Becky ultimately became a Catholic after marrying another strong Catholic man, and Jack has had the opportunity to baptize two of their children.

Today, Father Jack Overmyer is resident chaplain at Saint Anne Home and Retirement Community in Fort Wayne.

He finds great satisfaction in his work there and is especially impressed by the interwoven love of the staff and residents, displayed in many ways but daily expressed when a nurse or aide is kneeling on the ground caring for the feet of a patient, the time taken by many staff to sit down and comfort an upset resident, or encourage one another.

Jack Overmyer, the boy who prayed, “God, don’t make me a priest,” is now thankful that someone else found a way to a priesthood. He’s happy... he never thought he would be borne to become a priest and is extremely grateful that God did ask him.
Without Christ, life would have no hope, pope says in Easter message

BY CAROL GLATZ

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Without Christ’s sacrifice and resurrection, life would be without hope and human destiny would end only in death, Pope Benedict XVI said in his Easter message.

However, “Easter does not work magic,” and the human journey will still be marked by grief and anguish, as well as joy and hope for the future, he said April 4 in his message “urbi et orbi” (to the city and the world).

Humanity today needs to free itself from sin, not by making superficial changes, but through a true moral and spiritual conversion, he said.

It needs the salvation of the Gospel, so as to emerge from a profound crisis, one which requires deep change, beginning with consciences,” the pope said in the message broadcast and broadcast from St. Peter’s Square to millions of people worldwide.

In an unusual departure from the Vatican’s traditional Easter ceremony, Cardinal Angelo Sodano, dean of the College of Cardinals and former Vatican secretary of state, read aloud a message of Easter greetings and support for the pope before the start of the Easter liturgy in St. Peter’s Square.

In reference to the heightened criticism about how the Church and Pope Benedict have handled criticism about how the Church is handled, the pope when they brought

The cardinal thanked the pope for his strength and courage, and said Catholics’ faith will not be shaken by the “current petty gossip” and other “ordinals that occasionally strike the Church community.”

The basilica’s steps and central balcony were carpeted with colorful tulips, hyacinths, blooming trees and other greenery; the more than 24,000 flowers and shrubs were donated by companies in the Netherlands.

Under a cold rain, Pope Benedict read his message and gave his blessing after celebrating Easter morning Mass with tens of thousands of people gathered in front of St. Peter’s Basilica. Even huddled under umbrellas, the crowd was jubilant, chanting the pope’s name and waving soggy banners and flags.

The pope offered Easter greetings in 65 different languages, “peace” to Aymara, Chinese and Guarani.

The night before, during the Easter Vigil Mass in St. Peter’s Basilica, the pope washed the feet of 12 men and confirmed a woman from Sudan, a woman from Somalia, two women from Albania and a man from Japan.

The pope also baptized a small boy from Russia. The boy’s godfather, a priest, hoisted the boy up in his arms to hold his head over the baptismal font.

The pope used a golden shell to pour the holy water over each catechumen’s head. The newly baptized, wearing white shawls, had a brief personal exchange with the pope when they brought the offertory gifts to the altar.

In his homily at the Vigil Mass, the pope said baptism marks the beginning of a process of renouncing a world of greed, lies and cruelty and a culture that worships power.

Through Baptism, the pope said, human beings are called to be messengers of peace. “Certainly, we remain men and women, but we receive the mission of angels, messengers of Christ,” he said.

The pope’s message came on the day of greatest hope is Good Friday” when Christ, through his death, becomes the source of life for all of humanity, he said.

Christ’s gift of love on the cross transforms reality, he said, so that “from betrayal can come friendship, from repudiation, pardon, and from hatred, love.”

Thousands of people, most holding candles, attended the evening service and listened to the meditations written by Italian Cardinal Camillo Ruini.

Under an awning on a hill overlooking the Colosseum, the pope stood and knelt through the entire 90-minute service while women and men from Haiti, Iraq, Vietnam, the Democratic Republic of Congo and Italy, as well as two Franciscan friars from the Holy Land carried a black wooden cross through and around the Colosseum.

After the 14th station, Cardinal Agostino Vallini, the pope’s vicar for Rome, handed the cross to the pope, who stood and held it aloft.

Pope Benedict left the Vatican after the Holy Week and Easter celebrations to spend a few days resting at the papal residence in Castel Gandolfo, south of Rome.

Reciting the “Regina Coeli” prayer with hundreds of visitors gathered in the courtyard of the villa April 5, the pope said that like the angel that told the disciples Jesus had risen, Christians are called to be messengers of Jesus’ Resurrection, his victory over evil and death, and bearers of his love to the world.

“Certainly, we remain men and women, but we receive the mission of angels, messengers of Christ,” he said.

University of Saint Francis offers electronic recycle event

FORT WAYNE — The University of Saint Francis invites the community to recycle its outdated or broken electronics at North Campus, 2702 South St., on Saturday, April 10, from 9 a.m. until noon. Help protect the earth by keeping these materials out of landfills.

In recognition of Earth Day and the university’s Franciscan value to “Respect Creation,” the Community Electronics Recycling event is sponsored by USF’s Green Campus Committee in partnership with Ace Recycling and Action Environmental, both Fort Wayne based companies that are certified, licensed and insured for e-waste handling.

Accepted items for recycling include personal computers, monitors, keyboards, laptops, mice, cables, computer printers, desktop fax machines, desktop scanners, desktop copiers, surge protectors, microwaves, cell phones, VHS players, DVD players, and stereo equipment (no TVs or appliances). Some items may be upgraded and given to needy families, schools or churches; some items may be remanufactured; others may be disassembled with components reclaimed or recycled.

This year’s celebration of Easter at St. Anthony Church, Angola, marked the first time Mass was celebrated in the new church. “There is no more appropriate time to mark a new beginning than at Easter,” said Conventual Franciscan Father Fred Pasche, pastor of St. Anthony. For the Pomeroy children, Jayden, age 7, and Carson, age 3, the Easter Vigil Mass held special meaning as the two boys entered the emersion pool of the new baptismal font and became the first people baptized in the new church. In addition, the Pomeroy boys’ mother, Chrisita, joined others being initiated into the Church that evening through the sacrament of Confirmation. The church will be dedicated this summer.

Donations are welcome to support student initiatives through the “Our Redeemer Lives” Spring Sharathon. Usher, president of Third Millennium Media, is the former national host of “Catholic Answers Live,” heard on Redeemer Radio weekdays from 6-8, both mornings and afternoons.

Throughout Sharathon local guests will share their perspectives on the vital importance of Catholic radio to the local community. Pledges from individuals and businesses will be accepted by phone (260) 436-1450 and toll-free (800) 436-1450, by mail at Redeemer Radio, 4705 Illinois Rd., Fort Wayne, IN 46804, online at www.redeemeradio.com, or in person at the studio located at 4705 Illinois Rd., Suite 104.

Volunteers will also be welcome. The “Our Redeemer Lives” Spring Sharathon will permit Redeemer Radio to carry its mission to evangelize the Catholic faith through radio and to serve the Catholic community, in harmony with the diocese and Bishop Kevin C. Rhoades.

Bishop Rhodes will be an on-air guest for the first hour of Sharathon on the morning of Sunday, April 21, at 7 a.m. Redeemer Radio will strengthen listeners in their faith journey by continuing to offer the best of Catholic programming and diverse local programs ranging from catechesis, prayers and the Mass, daily readings and reflections from area priests, local sports broadcasts, and interviews of prominent authors and Catholic leaders. Redeemer Radio is especially proud to offer Notre Dame football, as well as Bishop Dwenger and Bishop Luers football and basketball.

St. Jude plans open house

SOUTH BEND — Administrators and staff at St. Jude Catholic School in South Bend invite the public to attend an open house on Sunday, April 18, from 1-3 p.m.

School board members and student ambassadors will be on hand to provide tours of the facility and answer visitors’ questions. Instructional faculty will be available to further explain the curriculums and programs offered at the school.

St. Jude Catholic School offers K-8 students a faith-based education with high academic standards.

“We will be setting up several examples of student work in technology in our classrooms so that visitors can see how we are providing students with access to 21st century learning opportunities,” says Principal Stephen Donndelinger.

In addition to the usual core academic subjects and religious instruction, St. Jude offers gifted opportunities and fine arts courses such as choir, band, drama and art and technology. Grades 5-8 have the opportunity to participate in elective learning opportunities such as Spanish, problem solving, creative writing, faith and service, personal finance, yearbook or knitting, as well as athletic programs offered by the Inter-City Catholic League (ICCL).

Opportunities for “lifelong learning” include the lower grades as well. Spanish instruction begins in kindergarten and grows more challenging for each grade. Second- and third-grade students learn the game of chess through a systematic, curriculum-driven program called “First Move.” Other conveniences include the hot lunch program and after-school care.

St. Jude also has the tools to support academically challenged students. Principal Donndelinger confirms, “We have a full-time resource teacher, a mentoring program, gifted student support and the cooperation of the South Bend Schools’ special education department.”

The “School-Mates” mentoring program matches students who have academic, organizational or social skills with a high school student or adult who spends quality time with them each week.

St. Jude plans to have registration packets for new families and information about summer programs that are available to any students, including from other schools.

St. Jude Catholic School is located on Hildebrandt Street on South Bend’s south side. For more information, please contact the school at (574) 291-3820 or visit www.stjudeschool.net.

St. Charles student awarded first place in poetry contest

FORT WAYNE — Katelyn Yeager, an eighth-grade student at St. Charles Borromeo School, has been awarded first place in the middle school category for her Holocaust related poem “The Storm,” in the poetry and essay contest “We Must Remember.”

Open to the public and held annually by Fort Wayne Jewish Federation, Yeager will receive a $200 savings bond at a special Yom HaShoah service April 13 at the Jewish Temple on Old Mill Road. The ecumenical service hosts clerics of various faiths in the area. One of this year’s Catholic representatives will be Sister Elise Kriss, president of the University of Saint Francis and a sister of St. Francis of Assisi Perpetual Profession. Yeager’s poem will be published in the Jewish federation’s newsletter, “Challights.”
Marian science students receive awards

BY KAREN CLIFFORD

MISHAWAKA — Listed below are the names of Marian High School science students that have either received grants, placed in several state competitions this year, or both. Junior Research Grants were awarded from the Indiana Academy of Science. The science competitions included the Science Olympiad at St. Joseph’s College Regional in Rensselaer, the Science Olympiad Wild Card Tournament in Lafayette, the Northern Indiana Regional Science and Engineering Fair at the University of Notre Dame, the Indiana State Junior Science and Humanities Symposium at Saint Mary-of-the-Woods College in Terre Haute and the Indiana State Science Olympiad tournament at IU Bloomington.

• Michelle Barany — Received a $300 Junior Research Grant from the Indiana Academy of Science for Characterization and Synthesis of Novel Uranil Chromate Crystal Structures. She won first place in Environmental Chemistry and third place in Remote Sensing from the Science Olympiad at St. Joseph’s College Regional and placed first in Environmental Chemistry in the Science Olympiad Wild Card Tournament. She won first place in Chemistry at Northern Indiana Regional Science and Engineering Fair. Barany was a top-10 PowerPoint finalist at the Science Olympiad St. Joseph’s College Regional.

• Anna Loeser — Won fourth place in Mission Possible at the Science Olympiad St. Joseph’s College Regional. She placed third in Anatomy and Physiology, and third place in Ego-O-Naut at the Science Olympiad Wild Card Tournament.

• Patrick Oh — Won first place in It’s About Time, third place in Omontology, fourth place in Physics Lab and fourth place in Trajectory at the Science Olympiad St. Joseph’s College Regional.

• Eddie Hunckler — Won second place in Mission Possible at the Science Olympiad St. Joseph’s College Regional. She placed first in Ecology, and second place in Write It Do It at the Science Olympiad Wild Card Tournament. Garatoni placed second in Write It Do It at the Indiana State Science Olympiad tournament.

• Andrew Cockman — Won second place in Ego-O-Naut and fifth place in It’s About Time at the Science Olympiad St. Joseph’s College Regional.

• Chloe Deranek — Received a $218 Junior Research Grant from the Indiana Academy of Science for The Study of Theobromine and Related Compounds in Mesoamerican Vessels. She won first place in Chemistry and second place in Forensics at the Science Olympiad St. Joseph’s College Regional. She placed second in It’s About Time at the Science Olympiad Wild Card Tournament.

• Andrea Freeze — Received a $45 Junior Research Grant from the Indiana Academy of Science for “Can Hibiscus Flowers Sense How Many Pollen Grains are On Their Stigma?” She won first place in Plant Sciences at Northern Indiana Regional Science and Engineering Fair with a Bayer Life Sciences Outstanding Senior Project Award for $50.

• Lauren Garatoni — Won third place in ecology, and first place in Write It, Do It at the Science Olympiad St. Joseph’s College Regional. She placed first in ecology, third place in Mousetrap Vehicle and second place in Write It Do It at the Science Olympiad Wild Card Tournament. Garatoni placed second in Write It Do It at the Indiana State Science Olympiad tournament.

• Nate Briggs — Won fifth place in It’s About Time, and fourth place in Remote Sensing, at the Science Olympiad St. Joseph’s College Regional.

• Sam Leung — Won second place in It’s About Time at the Science Olympiad St. Joseph’s College Regional. He placed first in Energy and Transportation at the Northern Indiana Regional Science and Engineering Fair.

• Mark Imus — Received a $300 Junior Research Grant from the Indiana Academy of Science for the Investigation of HIV GAG Protein Budding Mechanism from Human Cells. He placed first for experimental design and It’s About Time, and second place in technical problem solving from the Science Olympiad St. Joseph’s College Regional.

• Michael Hunckler — Received a $300 Junior Research Grant from the Indiana Academy of Science for the Study of Theobromine and Related Compounds in Mesoamerican Vessels. She won first place in Chemistry at the Science Olympiad St. Joseph’s College Regional. She placed second in It’s About Time at the Science Olympiad Wild Card Tournament.

• Mike Jankowski — Received a top-10 PowerPoint finalist at the Indiana State Junior Science and Humanities Symposium.

• Anna Loeser — Won second place in Astronomy, first place in Dynamic Planet, and second place in Microbe Mission at the Science Olympiad St. Joseph’s College Regional. Loeser placed third in Astronomy, second place in Dynamic Planet, and third place in Microbe Mission at the Science Olympiad St. Joseph’s College Regional.

Loeser placed third in Astronomy, second place in Dynamic Planet, and third place in Microbe Mission at the Science Olympiad St. Joseph’s College Regional.
Evan Merryman — Received a $150 Junior Research Grant from the Indiana Academy of Science for his work on the Expansion of the Indiana State Science Olympiad team.

Jasmine Podell — Received a $150 Junior Research Grant from the Indiana Academy of Science for her work on the Comparison of Redox Titration with a New Density-Based Device for the Analysis of Chromatography.

Abby Prichard — Won third place in Forensics at the Science Olympiad St. Joseph’s College Regional.

Drew Robinson — Won first place in Experimental Design and first place in Remote Sensing at the Science Olympiad St. Joseph’s College Regional.

Patrick Russell — Won second place in Medicine and Health at the Northern Indiana Regional Science and Engineering Fair. He also received $100 in Cardiovascular Research and Education Foundation Award at the Science Olympiad Wild Card Tournament.

Abby Sackow — Received a $285 Junior Research Grant from the Indiana Academy of Science for her work on the Role of Bacterial Migration Across Food Surfaces.

Tim Trippel — Received a $99 Junior Research Grant from the Indiana Academy of Science for her work on the Role of Can Secreted Proteins from Whole-cell Mycobacteria be Detected Using MALDI-TOF-TOF M89. He also received $50 in Food Science Olympiad Wild Card Tournament.

Caire Sieradzki — Received a $300 Junior Research Grant from the Indiana Academy of Science for her work on the Role of Can Secreted Proteins from Whole-cell Mycobacteria be Detected Using MALDI-TOF-TOF M89.
Ordination to the Priesthood
April 10, 2010

Without the Sacrament of Holy Orders, we would not have the Lord. Who put Him there in that tabernacle? The priest. Who welcomed your soul at the beginning of your life? The priest. Who feeds your soul and gives it strength for its journey? The priest. Who will prepare it to appear before God, bathing it one last time in the blood of Jesus Christ? The priest, always the priest. And if this soul should happen to die [as a result of sin], who will raise it up, who will restore its calm and peace? Again, the priest.” -St John Mary Vianney-

BY KAREN CLIFFORD

MISHAWAKA — “Creative writing is empowering. Children don’t get to go to school and decide that two plus two is five and the capital of Indiana is Albany; they’d be wrong. But creative writing allows them to decide what’s right and wrong for their story. Writing and drawing are worlds where a child can decide what happens.”

These words are the reflection of Peter Catalanotto, Pratt Institute graduate, children’s book author and illustrator, and guest author at the Catholic Schools’ 17th annual Young Authors’ Conference at Marian High School. Approximately 450 students from 11 area schools participated in the half-day event which included Catalanotto, nationally acclaimed area children’s book illustrator Bruce Langton, and a presentation by Fr. Gerard Joseph Olinger, Jr., CSC, and Fr. Kevin Gregory Grove, CSC, of St. Joseph Catholic Church.

Suzanne Wiwi, principal of St. Joseph Catholic School in South Bend and chair of the Young Authors’ Conference, explained the concept of the event.

“The original premise, which continues today, for having this conference, was to encourage the reading-writing connection. Learning the writing process and applying it to their own writing is important as well as encouraging students to let their writing, ‘tell a story.’ Authors are asked to focus on their own writing as well as their love for literature and expression through their books. Authors often illustrate their own books, so that component is often emphasized.”

She continued, “This year we have an author who is also an illustrator. Our second presenter is a local illustrator who was a feature author several years ago; he was so well received by the students we decided to have him return again this year. We also provide speakers who address parents; giving them ways they can help their child with reading and writing.”

The morning event included small group sharing by students with a simultaneous parent presentation by teachers Young and Lewis, a presentation on the process Catalanotto uses to create a character’s face for his books, and students participation in making pictures with illustrator Langton.

During one of the student small group sessions, Marisol Martinez, a third grader at St. Pius X School, discussed her story “Two Crews in One,” with fellow young authors.

“It is about a dog crew and a cat crew, who after being rivals for sometime, unite their crews to form one. The dogs always chase the cats and win all the games played. The cats decide one day to break into the dog’s hideout and find an unwanted surprise.”

At the parent presentation, “Reading is Thinking about the Words on a Page,” given by Young and Lewis, the importance of parental participation in their child’s reading development was stressed.

“We want students and parents to understand there are two voices involved in reading. There is a reading voice, which is reading the words on the page and a thinking voice, which are the questions, thoughts and interactions you have while reading. Reading is thinking about the words on a page,” said Young. Lewis added, “Good readers read a variety of literature that exposes them to different types of writing. Good writers don’t become good writers by writing things over and over. Good writers learn how to become good writers by reading. By making parents aware of the reading strategies, they can help their

Chrism Mass provides a beautiful focus on priests

Many who attended the Chrism Mass, celebrated last week at the cathedrals in both South Bend and Fort Wayne, would concur that this Mass is one of the most beautiful liturgies celebrated during Holy Week. And during this Year for Priests, it took on extra significance as the priests renewed their commitment to priestly service.

At the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception in Fort Wayne last Tuesday, with priests seated in the sanctuary, Bishop Kevin C. Rhoades, in his homily, addressed the priests turning from the pulpit toward the priests and adding a personal touch.

He explained, "...Our concelebration at this Chrism Mass is a beautiful manifestation of our fraternal unity and deep communion as priests of Jesus Christ as we celebrate together the Eucharistic sacrifice."

Pope Benedict proclaimed a Year for Priests, Bishop Rhoades explained, "to deepen the commitment of all priests to interior renewal for the sake of a stronger and more incisive witness to the Gospel in today's world."

He added, "It has been a year of grace for us priests, thanks especially to the amazing support and prayers of so many of you, deacons, religious and lay faithful. I think this Year for Priests is a wonderful time also to focus on the promotion of the discernment of priestly vocations. ..."

A time for vocations

Bishop Rhoades said one of the highest priorities of his episcopacy is promoting priestly vocations. The Chrism Mass is particularly focused on the ministerial priesthood.

"I am convinced in the bottom of my heart that God is calling many young men throughout our diocese to the ministerial priesthood, to become living icons of Jesus Christ, our great High Priest, the Head and Shepherd of the Church," he said.

With a round of applause, Bishop Rhoades assured the seminarians of his support and asked all the faithful to pray for them.

We need priests for the Church to fulfill her mission. As Bishop Rhoades explained in his homily: "Without priests, there would be no Eucharist, since by the will of Christ the Eucharistic mystery cannot be celebrated in any community except by an ordained priest. In this Year of the Priest, it is particularly important for us to think about this and to consider that the promotion of priestly vocations is a duty of us all."

A duty of us all

So what can we the laity do? Those of us who are parents are charged with the responsibility to instill in our homes an awareness of piety and love for the Church and the priesthood. Incorporating prayer into our homes — especially at mealtimes, bedtime — can be beneficial. Also families can incorporate Scripture reading, rosary and other devotions into their family life. Attending Mass as a family whenever possible builds Catholic identity. In addition, inviting a priest or religious into our homes for dinner helps our children see those who minister to us interacting in the family setting. And we can all pray for vocations!

Priestly witness

Bishop Rhoades encouraged priests to promote their vocation: "In fact, the priest’s faithful living of his priestly promises is a powerful means to promoting the priestly vocations." And he pointed out, through the writings of Pope Benedict XVI, three aspects that are effective priestly witness. First is friendship with Christ. The second is "the complete gift of oneself to God." The third aspect highlighted is "a life of communion." The priest is to be "a man of communion." This means being "open to all, capable of gathering into one the pilgrim flock which the goodness of the Lord has entrusted to him."

To all priests, we say "Thank you, Father!"

Catholic Home Missions Appeal supports faith

Dear Bishop Rhoades,

Please accept my deepest appreciation for your diocese’s contribution of $43,941.55 from your 2009 Catholic Home Missions Appeal. The generosity of your parishioners is needed greatly by our U.S. mission dioceses.

Contributions to the appeal go directly to our brother bishops who cannot offer their people even basic pastoral services without outside help. In these difficult times, small dioceses without significant reserves are in increasing danger and need a helping hand to evangelize, to catechize, and especially to train future priests and lay leaders to sustain and strengthen the faith. Currently, the Subcommittee on the Home Missions is assisting 87 mission bishops.

The 2010 Catholic Home Missions Appeal will be taken up in many dioceses the weekend of April 24-25. Please encourage your pastors to say something about the home missions during Mass on appeal weekend. There are resources to assist them at www.usccb.org/hm/materials.htm.

Hundreds of their brother priests in small parishes across the country benefit directly from your appeal, as do the people they serve.

I am grateful for all you do to support home mission dioceses and wish you a blessed remainder of the Lenten season.

Sincerely yours in Christ,
Bishop Michael W. Warfel
Great Falls-Billings
Chairman, USCCB Subcommittee on Catholic Home Missions

Very other important consistent life issues

I would like to comment and dialogue with you and your March 28 editorial, “The Catholic voice to be heard.”

When I was a lay student at the University of Notre Dame in 1946 I was taught the principles of social justice. The basic social justice issue I learned was this: If God created our universe and our planet then all of the resources of earth be gifted to all human beings. The Church’s corollary of this teaching is that every human being has a human, social right to adequate food, clothing, shelter, education and health.

Thus, in the light of the present consistent life issues, will you take a stand against abortion, capital punishment and the death penalty.

Indiana Knights to meet in Indianapolis

Indiana Knights of Columbus State Deputy Stephan Ziemba has issued his call to all officers, directors, chairman and delegates to converge on Indianapolis for its annual state convention, April 24-25, at the Best Western Board Hotel. The theme for this year’s annual meeting is “Dream Big.”

This convention will be the 109th gathering of Indiana Knights to exchange ideas and renew old friendships. It will be a time of prayerful reflection of the past year. It will be a time of discussion and decision to improve and fine tune as part of his “Project Moses” campaign.

On Sunday, state directors and chairmen will have the opportunity to highlight their area of responsibility, offering direction and suggestions to improve and fine tune activities. Immediately following the directors and chairmen will be election of officers. A new state deputy, state secretary, state treasurer, state advocate and state wardens will be chosen to begin their term in July. In addition, delegates to the Supreme Convention to be held in Washington, D.C., next August will also be elected.

The office of priest

We are speaking in these last articles about the three offices that Christ shared with his Church: prophet, priest and king. During this Year for Priests, we are considering how the ordained minister fulfills each of these. Here we want to discuss the second office, that of the priesthood.

Of the three offices, this one seems most familiar because we use it as his title. Some Protestant communities refer to their ministers as “preachers.” Catholics call their ministers “priests.” He is also a prophet and a shepherd, but we use the name of the second office as his title.

What is a priest? It is connected to a Greek word “hieros” that means “mediator.” The priest mediates between God and man. He brings human prayer and sacrifice into the temple, and brings God’s blessings out to us. In this sense, many word religions talk about having priests. But in Christianity there is only one priest, because there is only one mediator. Our high priest is Christ, the Lord. And he does not go again and again into an earthly temple. He has crossed into the heavenly temple with the gift of His own blood. The Book of Hebrews (7:27) is strong on this point. “He has no need, as did the high priests, to offer sacrifice day after day ... He did that once for all when He offered Himself.”

Every Christian who is baptized lives from this one sacrifice of the High Priest, Christ. So Catholic doctrine speaks of two kinds of priesthood—a bапtismal priesthood of the laity, and an ordained priesthood of the ministerial grace—a life of faith, service and love.

The Year for Priests

The book of Revelation. In the reading, John, the author of Revelation, assumed by tradition to have been the Apostle John, tells of being in exile on the island of Patmos in the Aegean Sea. He said that on the Lord’s Day, or Sunday, the day of the Resurrection, he had a vision of Jesus. Jesus ordered John to write about everything that John saw.

St. John’s Gospel provides the last reading. The reading begins with an appearance of Jesus before the Apostles. The Lord brings peace. He then empowers the Apostles to forgive sins, saying that if the apostles forgive, sins are forgiven.

Next comes the familiar story of the doubting Thomas. Other Apostles had seen the Risen Lord, but Thomas had not seen Jesus. Thomas would not believe that Jesus indeed had risen, insisting that he would not believe until he personally could touch the very wounds of Christ.

When Jesus appeared before the Apostles, Thomas sees the wounds. He proclaims Jesus “my Lord and my God.”

The reading ends by stating that Jesus performed many other miracles.

The Lord heals and redeems us

THE SUNDAY GOSPEL

MSGR. OWEN F. CAMPION

2nd Sunday of Easter
Jn 20:19-31

The Acts of the Apostles supplies this weekend’s first reading. The first several chapters of Acts are fascinating because they begin with the story of the Lord’s Ascension itself and proceeds forward.

Vitaly important in the life of the community in Jerusalem was the leadership of the Apostles, with Peter clearly presented as their head. Such status of the Apostles was not surprising. Jesus had called the Apostles individually, commissioning each, and them all, to continue the work of salvation after the Ascension.

In this reading, the Apostles work many miracles. Peter moves among the sick, and merely to lie beneath his shadow was enough to make the sick better. The people held them in great esteem.

The implication is clear. Jesus did not leave the Christian body without guidance or without access to God’s grace. The Acts says that the Apostles, again with Peter as the leader, came together with the community for the “breaking of the bread,” for prayer, for giving aid to the needy and for healing the sick.

For its second reading, the Church offers a passage from the Book of Revelation. In the reading, John, the author of Revelation, assumed by tradition to have been the Apostle John, tells of being in exile on the island of Patmos in the Aegean Sea. He said that on the Lord’s Day, or Sunday, the day of the Resurrection, he had a vision of Jesus. Jesus ordered John to write about everything that John saw.

St. John’s Gospel provides the last reading. The reading begins with an appearance of Jesus before the Apostles. The Lord brings peace. He then empowers the Apostles to forgive sins, saying that if the apostles forgive, sins are forgiven.

Next comes the familiar story of the doubting Thomas. Other Apostles had seen the Risen Lord, but Thomas had not seen Jesus. Thomas would not believe that Jesus indeed had risen, insisting that he would not believe until he personally could touch the very wounds of Christ.

When Jesus appeared before the Apostles, Thomas sees the wounds. He proclaims Jesus “my Lord and my God.”

The reading ends by stating that Jesus performed many other miracles.

Reflection

Only a week ago, in celebrating the feast of Easter, the Church joyfully and excitedly announced to us its belief that Jesus rose from the dead. To emphasize the meaning of this pronouncement, the Church gave us the liturgy of the Easter Vigil, the very summit of the Church’s entire year of formal worship.

This weekend, just a week after Easter, the Church hurries to tell us that the Risen Christ is with us still, visibly, tangibly and dynamic.

He still is present with us through the Apostles. The Church clearly verifies the Apostles’ credentials. The Lord especially empowered and commissioned them.

In the second reading, from the Book of Revelation, we are told of John’s extraordinary mystical encounter with the Risen Lord.

John’s Gospel, in the third reading, continues the story by reporting the Lord’s conferral upon the Apostles the very power of God itself, by giving them the ability to forgive sins. As sins affront God, only God can forgive sins. Yet Jesus conveyed this power to the Apostles.

Thomas is important to the story. He doubted, hardly an unusual human reaction to the amazing assertion that Christ had risen from the dead. Then Thomas saw Jesus and uncompromisingly believed.

The Church is saying that we today encounter Christ through the Apostles. Through the Apostles the Lord heals and redeems us.

Divine Mercy Sunday calls us to rejoin in the benefits given us in encountering the Lord.

4. In a more traditional vein, this is recommended for the back of a fool
   a. a tattoo   b. a rod (stick)   c. the resin of the myrrh tree (itching powder)

5. An interesting distinction is made between liars and fools in this formula:
   a. it is the lips of the fool that conceal hostility; but he who spreads accusations is a liar.
   b. the lips of the liar that conceal hostility; but who he spreads peanut butter on his bacon is a fool.
   c. it is the lips of the liar that conceal hostility; but he who spreads accusations is a fool.

6. Proverbs 11:29 warns that folly can lead a person to this degraded social status
   a. enslavement   b. immigration   c. singing at karaoke bars

7. Proverbs 12 tells us an obvious difference between the prudent and the foolish is that
   a. the fool immediately shows his hand in card games
   b. the fool immediately shows his wealth to any stranger
   c. the fool immediately shows his anger

8. Proverbs 14 tells us something similar
   a. The quick-tempered man makes a fool of himself, but the prudent man is better with a sword.
   b. The quick-tempered man makes a fool of himself, but the prudent man is at peace.
   c. The quick-tempered man makes a fool of himself, but the prudent man gets the first punch because the fool alerts him to the threat.

9. Getting positively zoological, Proverbs also recommends we do this
   a. face a hungry goat, but never a fool in his folly!
   b. face a wolverine who’s eating carrion, but never a fool in his folly!
   c. face a bear robbed of her cub, but never a fool in his folly!

10. And Proverbs offers us this gem of wisdom, which still holds true today.
    a. Even a fool, if he keeps silent, is considered wise; if he closes his lips, intelligent.
    b. Even a fool, if he has enough money, can get elected.
    c. Even a fool, if he has good manners, can get a beautiful wife.

11. But Proverbs is not the only source of commentary on folly. Ecclesiastes 2:14-19 is clear that
    a. the wise man has eyes in his head, but the fool has eyes in his potatoes
    b. the wise man has eyes in his head, but the fool walks in darkness
    c. the wise man has eyes in his head, but the fool has eyes in the back of his head

12. While Sir 8 warns us to take no counsel with a fool for this specific reason
    a. for he can keep nothing to himself
    b. for he can keep the change
    c. for he can keep his wife in a shell

13. There is no shortage of commentary on folly in the New Testament either. Even Jesus discusses how
    a. whoever says, “You fool,” will be treated as a Roman
    b. whoever says, “You fool” will be liable to fiery Gehenna (perdition)
    c. whoever says, “You fool” will be liable to flogging by Peter

Reports of the clerical sexual abuse of the young in Europe — and the gross mishandling of these cases by bishops, including connivance in cover-ups ignited a media firestorm in late summer and fall. Including calls for the pope's resignation in light of allegations that he was party to reassigning an abusive priest while archbishops of Munich-Freising and that he impeded the disciplining of an abusive Milwaukee priest while prefect of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith.

As is too often the case, agendas other than an honest accounting for the sins, failures and crimes of the past, and the protection of vulnerable young people in the present and future, were at work here. Enemies of the Church saw an opportunity to discredit Catholic moral teaching by painting the Church as a hypocritical criminal conspiracy of sexual abusers/betrayals.

Contingent-fee lawyers smelled an opportunity to try to dig into the Vatican's resources, having already bled the United States States of billions of dollars. The allegations against the pope, which were demonstrably false, were underway made in a vain attempt of these latter two agendas.

Here are some facts relevant to separating truth from falsehood as this story unfolds:

• The sexual abuse of the young is a global plague. Portraying the Catholic Church as its epicenter is malicious and false. Forty to 60 percent of sexual abuse takes place within families. There were 290,000 reported cases of abuse in public schools in 1991-2000. There were six credible cases of sexual abuse reported in the Catholic Church in the United States in 2009: six, in a Church of some 68,000,000 members.

• Having learned the lessons of 2002, the Catholic Church in America today is likely the safest environment for children in the country. No institution working with the young — not the public schools, not the teachers unions, not the Scouts — has done as much to face its past failures in this area and to put in place policies to prevent such horrors in the future.

• Pope Benedict XVI did not impede sanctions against Father Lawrence Murphy, the Milwaukee priest who abused 200 deaf children in his care; the New York Times story of March 25 alleging that is falsified by the legal documents the Times itself provided on its Web site. Then there was the story’s souring. For the Times to cite as one of its principal sources the eminent archbishop of Milwaukee, Remberg Weakland, who notoriously paid hush money to a male lover and who did nothing about Father Murphy for a decade and a half, was bad enough. But to use as a second principal source Jeff Anderson, the Minnesota attorney who has a direct financial interest in the Murphy case and in painting the Vatican as the center of a global conspiracy to protect pedophiles, suggests that the nation’s former newspaper of record has abandoned serious journalistic standards.

• The charge that the Church threatened sexual abuse whistleblowers with excommunication is false and malicious, as is the charge that then-Cardinal Ratzinger imposed silence on those who wished to report abusers to civil authorities. There has never been any such prohibition, and the confidentiality about abuse cases invoked in a 2001 Ratzinger letter to the world’s bishops on priests who solicited sex in the confessionals was intended to protect the integrity of the sacraments and the Church’s own legal process, and to encourage victims to come forward without fear of public scandal. Under Ratzinger’s leadership, procedures were put in place in Rome to make sanctions against abusers easier to apply.

• The pope’s March 20 letter to the Irish Church made clear that Joseph Ratzinger is determined to clean out what he once described as “filth” in the Church, and determined to bring the Curia along with him in that cleansing. That there is friction cleared up has not in doubt; much of that filth is decades old. There is no credible evidence, however, that the Catholic Church is at the center of the global sexual abuse crisis. Honest journalists will recognize that. So will serious Catholics.

Sts. Paul and Barnabas in Cyprus

What are the Christian sites pertaining to St. Paul and St. Barnabas on the island of Cyprus?

In the Acts of the Apostles in the New Testament, St. Paul and St. Barnabas are residing at Antioch in Syria (now Antakya in Turkey), the third largest city of the Roman empire at this time. Paul and Barnabas were chosen to go on their first missionary journey. They left Antioch and went down to the port of Seleucia on the Mediterranean Sea. From here they set sail for the island of Cyprus. On their arrival in Salamis, they proclaimed the Gospel in the Jewish synagogues. In ancient Roman times, Salamis was Cyprus’s main commercial center. St. Barnabas was a native son of Salamis. He is credited with introducing Christianity to Cyprus. He was martyred here by stoning e. A.D. 75. The ruins of ancient Salamis is an extensive archaeological site. Here you see the gymnasion, baths, the ocean, the amphitheater holding 5,000 people, a Roman villa, Byzantine cisterns, the Temple of Zeus, basilicas, a stadium, the early city walls and a marketplace.

At Salamis you can visit the monastery and museum of the apostle Barnabas. M. Dubin says a monastic community first grew up here in the 5th century A.D. following the discovery of the purported tomb of St. Barnabas. Funds were provided for the construction by the Byzantine emperor. The Arabs destroyed this church in the 7th century A.D. The present church and cloister date from 1756.

Near this monastery stands a small, undecorated little mausoleum chapel, shaded by a carob tree and erected in the 1950s over a catacomb that is the presumed tomb of Barnabas. Stairs lead down to rock-cut chambers with room for six bodies. Tradition says this tomb was discovered when St. Barnabas appeared in a dream to the Archbishop of Salamis and bid him unearth the saint’s remains from a lonely spot marked by a carob tree. The archbishop indeed found a catacomb matching the description and containing what could well have been the bones of Roman buildings with exquisite Sevillian mosaics on some columns, including one called “St. Paul’s Pillar,” because of the tradition that St. Paul was tied to it and scourged. At Paphos they have also uncovered an extensive complex of mosaics and some columns, including one called “St. Paul’s Pillar,” because of the tradition that St. Paul was tied to it and scourged.

The Acts of the Apostles then says that Paul and Barnabas traveled over the whole island of Cyprus as far as Paphos where they preached the Gospel to the governor Sergius Paulus. A Jewish magician or sorcerer objected to Paul’s teaching, so Paul temporarily blinded him. The governor was impressed and believed in Christ. M. Dubin says, that although, Paul was successful in converting the governor, he seems to have had a hard time combating the pagan goddess Aphrodite’s love-cult at Paphos and was reputedly scourged for his troubles on the site of the Byzantine basilica called Ayia Kirika. Here you see extensive 4th century A.D. mosaics and some columns, including one called “St. Paul’s Pillar,” because of the tradition that St. Paul was tied to it and scourged.

Girls’ tennis

In his sixth season with the Bishop Luers girls’ tennis program, Coach Brady McArdle has 28 girls on his 2010 roster and is grateful for the help of Barb Maher as assistant coach. Maher played tennis at the University of Saint Francis while earning her nursing degree. McArdle feels she will add a huge asset to this year’s team. With the loss of eight talented seniors from the 2009 SAC runner-up squad, the Knights return just one letter-winner in senior Jordan McArdle. Other senior members this year include: Bronte Beckerman, Emily Braun, Kelsey Hilarie, Dynisha Miller, Brianna Myles, Megan Shank. Miller along with sophomores Samantha Rahry, Abug Oberley, Christianna Regan and freshman Andrea Choka and Courtney Witte will be players to watch for on the court this season. With a difficult conference schedule, as well as, challenging duals with non-conference teams like Homestead, Canterbury, New Haven, Bellmont, DeKalb and Culver, McArdle hopes to be competitive and improve during the year.

Bishop Luers springs into sports action

BY MICHELLE CASTILEMAN

FORT WAYNE — With the clocks sprung ahead and the first day of spring upon us, it can only mean one thing — athletes across the state are preparing for the 2010 spring sports season. Sure signs of warm weather for Bishop Luers athletes make for perfect conditions for top performances in the Summit Athletic Conference (SAC) and across the state.

Golf

When asked about the upcoming Bishop Luers’ boys’ golf season, Coach Tom O’Brien replied, “The Bishop Luers’ boys’ golf season, Summit Athletic Conference athletes make for perfect conditions for top performances in the Summit Athletic Conference (SAC) and across the state. Warm weather for Bishop Luers spring sports season. Sure signs of spring upon us, it can only mean sprung ahead and the first day of Bishop Luers springs into sports action.

Lacrosse

In his second season, Coach Lonnie Nichter has high hopes for the 2010 Bishop Luers lacrosse team and claims, “Our skill levels are improving rapidly.” The team is off to a 1-2 start on the season boasting a strong freshman class coupled with a large group of seniors, which includes Jordan Crates, Andrew Vaughan, Devin Wysz, Paul Johnstone, Bryce Hill, Neil Rawlins, Dave Biomecke and Matt Hoch. Nichter admits last season was “pretty uneventful” and has much higher ambitions than a year ago. “We are working on team building and trying to get everyone on the same page,” he explains. Along with assistants Austin Miller, Eric Frentz, Tom Backoff and parent representative, Tom Miller, the Knights’ main objective this season is to make a strong run in the playoffs. “We also strive to develop marketable talent in our players with the goal of getting them recruited at the college level,” summarized Nichter.

Track and field

Annie Shank returns for the Knights this season and continues to dominate in the mile run. Both she and the 3200 meter relay team advanced to the 2009 state finals for the Bishop Luers track. Shank is reported to be working hard to improve her marks from a year ago. The Knights list 27 boys and 23 girls on their roster this season. In his 13th season with the Knights’ track program, Coach Jason Draper adds, “On both teams we have a bunch of talented young athletes and are looking forward to their successes.” On the girls’ side, Shank and 11 other letter winners return. “After graduating 14 seniors last year, it was exciting to have 13 freshmen out for the team and some other new faces in the sophomore and junior classes join us,” he explained. For the boys, senior Courtney Mitchell in the sprint events and junior distance specialist Billy McMahan are expected to lead the way. Hosting the Bishop Luers Relays on Saturday, April 17, will be a highlight on the schedule along with road trips to East Noble and Oak Hill for invitational.

Draper is grateful for an impressive group of assistants: Heath Briggs, Lee Rodenbeck, Matt Niemoe, Rob Bohl, Brett Rupright, Jacob Driver, Carolyn Harless, Gene Donnelly, Jason Harless and Phil Talarico. With over 50 years combined track and field competitive experience and over 60 years of coaching experience, Draper summarizes, “I am proud of the fact that we are teacher-coaches, because it provides a great example to student-athletes. Together we strive to improve our athletic abilities not only physically, but mentally, morally and spiritually.”

Coach Gary Rogers (360-317) previews that juniors, Josh Ulrey and Charlie Pfister will do the bulk of the work on the mound for the Bishop Luers baseball team that this season. Both two year varsity returnees, Ulrey, who batted .297, will play shortstop and third base when not pitching, while Pfister will catch behind the plate. Also returning for the Knights are Gabe Mendoza, another junior who hit .300 a year ago and sophomore Drew Morken who saw action in the outfield. Senior infielders expected to shine are Tim Kawiecki and Ethan Gregerson. Newcomers to the varsity roster are Nick Chapell, shortstop/third base, Zack Millard, second base, Marcus Lawson, outfield, Aaron LaMaster, outfield, Henry Till, pitcher/infield, and infielder Eddie Tuoma. The Knights hope to improve on their 8-16 record from 2009 after losing 10 seniors from their 2008 state championship team. In his 24th season, Rogers highlights a May 3 outing to Parkview Field and their Momenrial tournament at Huntington University on May 21 to this year’s schedule.

Softball

After a decade with the softball program, Coach Jeff Doll hands up the team for the Bishop Luers Knights who were tri-SAC champs in 2009. Ace pitcher, senior Amy Morrison is back for the Knights as are starters Alexis Devado, Kayla Girod and Erin Conroy. Athletic director, Matt Lindsay reports that players from last year’s junior varsity squad that have been called up to the varsity roster include: Liberty McCartney, Trish Skordos, Morgan Eckert and Alex Beckerman. The Knights open at Northrop April 12.

Bishop Dwenger gears up for spring sports

BY MICHELLE CASTLEMAN

FORT WAYNE — Scenes of slanted April rains pelting the bleachers will soon give way to the sizzling asphalt of a June track as the 2010 spring sports season gears up in Fort Wayne. The Saints from Bishop Dwenger hope to fare well against conference rivals as well as across the state this year.

“The weather has cooperated very nicely to date,” explained athletic director Andy Johns. “It has been years since we got the first softball game in without a rain-out.”

Girls’ tennis

“We have a strong group of newcomers this year and I’m looking forward to a fun and successful season with the girls,” explained Bishop Dwenger girls’ tennis Coach Anne Schenkkel (75-18). Schenkkel, who works part-time as a physical therapist at the FWO division of The Orthopedic Hospital, played tennis at the college level for the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame. The Saints were 10-2 in 2009 and return both their No. 1 singles player Ashlyn Rang and their No. 1 doubles queen Danielle Maxson. Rang, who was 20-1 a year ago, won the individual sectional title and first round of the regional. Maxson went 14-4. The 23-deep Saints’ roster includes two sets of sisters who are currently playing doubles together — the Sutherland, Jill and Leah, and junior Danielle partners with freshman sister, Elizabeth Maxson.

Boys’ track

Blessed with great weather early on, Coach Erin Brady feels many of the Bishop Dwenger boys’ track team members are running faster, jumping farther and throwing farther than this time last year. The Saints boast strong athletes in all areas — sprints, middle distance, long distance and field events for 2010. In her rookie season as head coach, Brady lists 54 boys on the Bishop Dwenger roster with only six seniors. “Although we have many young runners, we are looking forward to a successful season with our talented ladies,” added Brady. Also on the coaching staff with Brady this season are Theresa Roberts, Nancy Yorke and Herb Widner. In their first indoor competition at Trine University, the group set many good base times and distances. “It was a great opener,” commented Brady. At New Haven High School, the runners tied for first place and had six athletes finish in the top spot on the varsity squad and ten junior varsity blue ribbon winners.

Baseball

Coach Larry Windwiller and the Bishop Dwenger Saint’s base-ball team will put together a com- mercial around the bases after losing seven out of eight starting position players and four key pitchers who threw the majority of their 2009 innings when Bishop Dwenger went 20-9. Although they play a tough schedule and need to improve their youth to escape to avoid a “long” season, Windwiller believes, “We can be competitive, if we work hard.” And he adds, “I do hope to be over the .500 mark.” Mike Mugg is the lone returning starter with 22 RBI’s and 21 runs. The third baseman hit .438 last year. From the 2009 bench, Justin Weiler (308), Albert Shoff (289), and Brad Freiburger (281) are back. Up from the 1-5 reserves are Nathan Tenker, Greg Kaiser, Russell Coonan, Cameron Smith and others who are expected to contribute at the varsity level this season. Weiler, Freiburger, Jake Markland, Fener and Steve McElwain are all pitch- ing possibilities for the Saints.

Boys’ golf

Expected to dominate their league once again, the Bishop Dwenger Saints return four of their five top golfers for 2010. The 2009 SAC and sectional champs are led by seniors and all-city selections, Timmy Burns, Danny Schipper, who works part-time as a physical therapist at The Orthopedic Hospital, played tennis at the college level for the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame. The Saints were 10-2 in 2009 and return both their No. 1 singles player Ashlyn Rang and their No. 1 doubles queen Danielle Maxson. After losing six starters from last season’s outstanding team, including state champion Adam Sunnarl, the Knights aren’t feeling sorry for themselves, they are simply reloading.
“We lost almost our whole squad with the exception of senior Adam Bethold, our lone holdover,” commented Jim Kryder, head golf coach. “In the recent past we have had that one standout that had steered the ship, this year it will be a collection of solid players that enjoy competing.”
The nucleus of our team will include seniors Andrew Ververst, Nick Stancombe and Bobby Price will have a solid showing,” Owen said. “Ben Rahrig, David Halter, Blake Talos and Brett Hershel all have experience and play at a high level.”

Our one Achilles heel is depth,” added Daher. “Anne Micinski, our trainer could end up being our most valuable player if she can help keep our kids healthy during the grinding season.”

Boys’ track
The boys’ track team at Marian is blessed with solid numbers as student athletes are heading to the big stage but the future looks very secure. “We have an evenly distributed team this year, a few solid sprinters, a few middle distance runners and a few long distance runners,” explained Owens. “We are not fast yet, but the kids have been working in the weight room and are getting stronger, and they are starting to see the big picture at the end of the season.”

“Greg McMillion is a senior distance runner that has really improved, and we are expecting a solid showing,” Owen said. “Ben Plade, Eric Plade, Connor Burk and Kyle Koch not only have the work ethic to be good this season but they also have the talent. “The sophomore class is very good and with time and commitment can grow to be a very successful group,” added Owen. “I think that we have the ability to compete right now at a smaller scale but the future looks very good on the big stage.”
Saint Joseph’s hopes the hard work pays off for spring athletics

BY JOE KOZINSKI

SOUTH BEND — Many things are on the mind of Saint Joseph’s High School Athletic Director Eric Gohlke when it comes to the spring season.

“Every one of the head coaches on our staff is returning and they have developed a sense of camaraderie that builds success,” Gohlke said. “The budget restraints have been ongoing but I’m very proud to say that they haven’t affected our ability to compete at the highest levels.”

“We at Saint Joseph’s are very excited about our spring teams,” Gohlke said. “I’m very proud to say that they haven’t affected our ability to compete at the highest levels.”

Softball

The softball is riding high off of last season’s sectional title.

“We played well last season and our expectations are high,” commented Coach Earl Keith. “We are returning seven talented players with strong pitching.

“Four of our returners were All-Northern Indiana Conference players — Sydney Hoffeth, senior first baseman; Amanda Chamblee, senior shortstop; Jenny Bals, junior pitcher and Emily McCollester-Purlee, a sophomore outfielder,” remarked Keith. “We are also expecting a very good campaign by Krista Matthys and Taylor Kurzhal.

“We with the returning players, if we continue to work hard and do the little things, we have a chance to be pretty darn good,” quipped Keith.

Baseball

Maturity and consistency will be the focus as the Indians take the field as the very talented Northern Indiana Conference takes aim.

“We have a senior-dominated squad and leadership is at a premium,” said Coach John Gump. “In high school, defense is a big deal, and we have a shot to be good if we can be consistent in the field and we can put the ball in play.”

“We are expecting good things this year based primarily on a pitching staff that is back with experience,” Gump remarked.

“Thank you for giving us another year,” Gump claimed.

With 10 of our 17 players being seniors, I expect some clutch hitting,” Gump exclaimed.

“I feel good about this team and the chemistry is great,” exclaimed Gump. “The competition combined with our experience should make for a solid year.”

Girls’ track

The Saint Joe girls’ track team has gotten off to another great start as they finished as State Runnerup in Class 1-A-3-A at the HSR Finals at Purdue March 20.

“We have high expectations for outdoors where we finished 9-1 last year in Northern Indiana Conference City title, and finished NIC and sectional runnerups (to Penn),” commented Coach Mike McCarthy.

“We return first team all-state 300 hurdler, Meghan Czarnecki, who also qualified for state in the 100 hurdles and is our sprint/hurdle captain,” explained McCarthy.

“Senior Taylor Turkel, a Notre Dame soccer signee, is a three-time state finalist in the sprints teamed with sophomore Morgan Carroll, also a returning state finalist in the 400-meter relay who is performing very well.

“Sophomore hurdler/jumper Mikaila Chamblee was the leading freshman point scorer in the NIC last year, she qualified in both events for the regionals in last year,” continued McCarthy. “We are also high on Katie Campbell, a junior, another state finalist returnee in the relays and hurdles, and year, won the South Bend Sectional champion who qualified for Indoor State Finals in the 55 dash.”

“The mid-distance and distance team is well balanced and returns three of four legs off a 3,200-meter relay — junior Ali Connelly, senior Mike Kendzicky, senior three-sport standout Mike Kendzicky opened his outdoor season last weekend jumping 5 feet 10 at the Charger Invitational start on a solid note.”

Boys’ golf

After a 17-3 2009 and returning almost everyone back, the Saint Joseph’s boys’ golf team is more-than-ready to start the season.

“Coach John Troeger said. “Our two captains Tyler Bilha, a four-year letter winner, and Sean Flanagan were good as juniors and are fantastic leaders on the course.”

“We have three more solid seniors returning in Joe Bauer and Alex and Max Fredlake,” added Troeger.

New books for spring

The following are recently published books that have been sent to Today's Catholic that can touch the fancy of Catholic and non-Catholic readers alike. Each book is reviewed using publishing house press releases and includes publisher name and ISBN number for ease of purchase.

“And God Said: How translations conceal the Bible’s Original Meaning...” by linguistic and translation expert Dr. Joel M. Hoffman, is an easy, enjoyable read that conveys ancient meanings of the Bible. Hoffman’s approach to Scripture has common but inaccurate translations. The author provides some correct translations for several familiar quotations. Thomas Dunne, ISBN: 978-0-312-56589-8

“The Bread of Angels,” by Stephanie Saldana, is the story of the author’s journey of faith and love. In this riveting read, Saldana, through her poetic style, takes the reader on her journey of self discovery, in one unlikely year, through war-torn regions of the Middle East before returning to a monastery where she discovers love. Doubleday, ISBN: 97-0-385-52200-7

“Bible Babe: Making Sense of the Most Talked About Book of All Time,” by religious studies scholar Kristen Swenson is a lively and accessible resource that provides readers with basic Bible literacy, including what is in the Bible, where it comes from and how it is used in culture today. Harper, ISBN: 978-0-06-172829-7

“Greek and Roman Literature and its influence on the Eucharist,” by Michel Bettigole, OSF, and James D. Childs, complements text, organized in four units that follow the four pillars of the Church: the Sacraments, the Church, and the importance of the Eucharist. Ave Maria Press, ISBN: 1-934711-182-8

“The Love Story of Creation: Book One,” by retired priest and founding member of Earthworks, an Indiana ecological community since 1988, Edward Ruezts, is a dramatization of the story of the creation of the universe. The author tells the story of 12 atom characters, Quarkie, Photie and their atomic friends who create and evolve the universe and the planet Earth over 15 million years. Inverse, ISBN: 978-1-4401-8838-1

“A Priest forever: Nine Signs of Renewal and Hope,” by Alfred McBride is a personal reflection on the meaning of being a priest and includes quotes, Scripture and personal stories from the author. The chapters include an exploration of a priest’s commitment to his vocation from the Eucharist to prayer to chastity. The book holds encouragement and nourishment for every priest. St. Anthony Messenger Press, ISBN: 978-0-86716-954-6

“The Bounty Hunter” (Columbia/Relativity)

Forgettable, frequently mean spirited romantic comedy and crime story begins with a former police officer-turned-bounty hunter (Gerard Butler) delightedly altruistic, his journalist-ex girlfriend (Jennifer Aniston) after she fails to appear for a court hearing, but the two quickly become entangled in a case of police corruption that leaves them dodging bullets and, far less successfully, a renewed hail of arrows from cupid’s bow. Any potential for heartwarming elements in director Andy Tennant’s predictable tale of rekindling romance get lost amid the frenetic shuffle as the rival protagonists use a Tarzan gun on one another as well as tackle and handcuff each other. Some action violence, scenes of torture, brief rear nudity, several sexual jokes and references, about eight uses of profanity, a bit of rough and much crude language. The USCCB Office for Film & Broadcasting recommends classification is PG — parents strongly cautioned. Some material may not be suitable for children.

“Hey, How to Train Your Dragon” (DreamWorks)

Robust animated fantasy about a teenage Viking (voiced by Jay Baruchel) who together with his loyal pet dragon and his friends Chris Sanders and Dean DeBlois have fashioned an engaging boy’s own action-adventure based on Cressida Cowell’s book, with impressive 3-D visuals and a constructive pacific message. While not overly taxing on brain cells or the imagination, it could be an above-average family-oriented ride, keeping in mind younger children may be frightened at times. Much relatively intense fantasy action, some harsh descriptions of Viking-dragon mayhem, two instances of potty language, two mildly off-color references to body parts. The USCCB Office for Film & Broadcasting classification is A-II — adults and adolescents. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is PG — parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.
