Statement of Bishop Kevin C. Rhoades at Death of Bishop John M. D’Arcy

February 3, 2013

Tod ay our beloved Bishop Emeritus John M. D’Arcy died in the peace of Christ. I am filled with deep sadness at the death of a dear friend and brother bishop. We mourn the death of a good shepherd after the heart of Christ, a bishop who loved the Lord and his people with all his heart. We are comforted at this time by our faith in the Resurrection. As we share the pain of loss, Our Lord’s promise of eternal life gives us joy and hope.

Bishop D’Arcy faced death as he also lived his life: with deep faith and trust in God. He offered his prayers and sufferings this past month for the people he loved and served with joy and faithfulness these past 28 years in the Diocese of Fort Wayne-South Bend.

I thank the faithful of our diocese for the many prayers offered for Bishop D’Arcy in his final days. Your loving and prayerful support brought him much joy and comfort. I thank Maureen Schott, the Sisters of St. Francis of Perpetual Adoration, Dr. Joseph Muhler and the other doctors, nurses and hospice care workers who assisted Bishop D’Arcy with such great care in his final days.

On behalf of the priests, deacons, religious sisters and brothers, and lay faithful of our diocese, I extend heartfelt condolences to Bishop D’Arcy’s beloved sisters, Sister Anne D’Arcy, a Sister of Saint Joseph, and Mrs. Joan Sheridan and her family.

I invite all to join me in prayer for our deceased shepherd that God may bring Bishop D’Arcy to everlasting peace and rest. The Lord has called him home. May the Lord welcome him among the saints in glory!

+ Kevin C. Rhoades
Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ:

“Peace be with you!” With these words, the Risen Lord greeted his frightened Apostles in the Upper Room on the day of his Resurrection. They were troubled, anxious, and fearful—much like each one of us at some point in our lives. Christ repeated the words, “Peace be with you.” But then he added, “Receive the holy Spirit. Whose sins you forgive are forgiven them” (Jn 20:19-23).

What an extraordinary gift! The Risen Lord was proclaiming that all the suffering he had just endured was in order to make available the gifts of salvation and forgiveness. He wanted the Apostles to receive these gifts. He wanted them to become apostles of this forgiveness to others.

In the Sacrament of Penance and Reconciliation, also called confession, we meet the Lord, who wants to grant forgiveness and the grace to live a renewed life in him. In this sacrament, he prepares us to receive him free from serious sin, with a lively faith, earnest hope, and sacrificial love in the Eucharist. The Church sees confession as so important that she requires that every Catholic go at least once a year.¹ The Church also encourages frequent confession in order to grow closer to Christ Jesus and his Body, the Church. By the grace of the Holy Spirit, we seek forgiveness and repentance, let go of patterns of sin, grow in the life of virtue, and witness to a joyful conversion. Since the graces of the sacrament are so similar to the purpose of the New Evangelization, Pope Benedict XVI has said, “The New Evangelization . . . begins in the confession.”²

We bishops and priests are eager to help you if you experience difficulty, hesitation, or uncertainty about approaching the Lord in this sacrament. If you have not received this healing sacrament in a long time, we are ready to welcome you. We, whom Christ has ordained to minister this forgiveness in his name, are also approaching this sacrament, as both penitents and ministers, throughout our lives and at this special moment of grace during Lent. We want to offer ourselves to you as forgiven sinners seeking to serve in the Lord’s name.

During Lent—in addition to the various penitential services during which individual confession takes place—we bishops and priests will be making ourselves available often for the individual celebration of this sacrament. We pray that through the work of the Holy Spirit, all Catholics—clergy and laity—will respond to the call of the New Evangelization to encounter Christ in the Sacrament of Penance and Reconciliation. Come to the Lord and experience the extraordinary grace of his forgiveness!

Fasting and abstinence during Lent

Abstinence from eating meat is obligatory for all Catholics 14 years of age and older on Ash Wednesday, Good Friday, and all Fridays during Lent. Fasting is obligatory for all Catholics from ages 18 to 59 on Ash Wednesday and Good Friday. The law of the fast means that only one full meal may be eaten. Two smaller meals are permitted, but they should not equal one full meal.

The fourth precept of the Church states: “You shall observe the days of fasting and abstinence established by the Church.” According to the Catechism of the Catholic Church, this precept “ensures the times of ascesis and penance, which prepare us for the liturgical feasts and help us acquire mastery over our instincts and freedom of heart.”
Bishop John M. D’Arcy dies at 80

BY TIM JOHNSON

FORT WAYNE — Bishop John M. D’Arcy, who served as the eighth bishop of the Diocese of Fort Wayne-South Bend from May 1, 1985 through Jan. 13, 2010, died at his home in Fort Wayne on the morning of Feb. 3. He was diagnosed with lung cancer in late December while visiting his family in Boston. He returned to Fort Wayne in January for care. Since his retirement in 2010, Bishop D’Arcy has served as bishop-emeritus. He has assisted at parishes, conferred the sacrament of Confirmation, and enjoyed providing retreats and missions and assisting as chaplain of Bishop Luers High School.

The son of Irish immigrants, Bishop D’Arcy was born Aug. 18, 1932. He began preparation for the priesthood in September of 1949 at St. John’s Seminary in Brighton, Mass. He was ordained to the priesthood on Feb. 2, 1957 for the Archdiocese of Boston. He studied in Rome at the Angelicum from 1965 to 1968 and received his doctorate in spiritual theology in 1968. He served as spiritual director and professor of spiritual theology at Saint John’s Seminary from 1968 to 1985.

Bishop D’Arcy was ordained an auxiliary bishop of Boston on Feb. 11, 1975 and was appointed Vicar for Spiritual Development for the archdiocese at the same time. He continued to serve as a spiritual director at St. John’s Seminary. Bishop D’Arcy directed the Office of Spiritual Development, which was established by the late Humberto Cardinal Medeiros in 1975.

On July 21, 1981, Bishop D’Arcy was appointed regional bishop for the northern area of the Archdiocese of Boston, known as the Lowell Region. Bishop D’Arcy continued as Vicar for Spiritual Development and continued to direct the archdiocesan Office of Spiritual Development.

On Feb. 26, 1985, Bishop D’Arcy was appointed eighth Bishop of Fort Wayne-South Bend and was installed on May 1, 1985.

Bishop D’Arcy has established many significant diocesan initiatives in the areas of spirituality, catechesis, education, ecumenism and social services outreach as follows:

• Women’s Care Center, Fort Wayne, organized and operational in renovated facility
• Vincent House for homeless founded — has grown from single home to encompass homes in central city to foster independence of families served
• Annual Bishop’s Appeal organized — 21st appeal in 2007 was considered most successful endeavor of its kind in nation, monies support parish and diocesan projects
• A $3.6 million renovation/restoration of the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, Fort Wayne, 1998
• Initiated Eucharistic Congress at University of Notre Dame, 2000
• Legacy of Faith capital campaign, 2004-2005 — creating endowments of more than $48.5 million for construction of new Our Lady of Guadalupe Church and Diocesan Shrine, and related Hispanic ministries, Warsaw; Catholic Charities services to the poor; schools’ endowment fund; and improved retirement program for priests
• Initiated live Sunday television Masses, Fort Wayne and South Bend, 1986
• Wrote major article on relationship between Catholic universities and bishops — especially relating to the requirements of the mandatum for Catholic theologians
• Undertook ecumenical dialogues with Methodist, Evangelical Lutheran and Jewish leaders.

In the Diocese of Fort Wayne-South Bend, Bishop D’Arcy established the Office of Spiritual Development, the Office for Hispanic Ministry and the Office of Catechesis. He called for an expansion of campus ministry/young adult programming and initiated annual youth and young adult retreats and retreats for disabled. He established diocesan office buildings in both South Bend and downtown Fort Wayne. Bishop D’Arcy established the position of archivist to preserve diocesan parish history as well as documents. He made an independent status for diocesan newspaper, Today’s Catholic. With the help of Our Sunday Visitor Institute, Bishop D’Arcy commissioned a history of diocese called “Worthy of the Gospel of Christ.”

Several building projects took place under Bishop D’Arcy’s leadership. New church projects included St. Elizabeth Ann Seton, Fort Wayne, 1989; St. Pius, Granger, 1986; Blessed Sacrament, South Bend, 1990; St. Mary, Fort Wayne, following destruction of church by fire, 1996 (established St. Mary’s Heritage Fund to assist in rebuilding); Holy Family, South Bend, 1997; St. Vincent de Paul, Fort Wayne, 1998; St. Theresa, Fort Wayne, 1999; and Our Lady of Guadalupe, Warsaw, 1999. Under his leadership, several schools and parishes renovated and expanded across the diocese. All four diocesan high schools held capital campaigns to improve their facilities.

Bishop D’Arcy is survived by two sisters: Sister Anne D’Arcy, a Sister of St. Joseph, and Joan (and Hugh) Sheridan. He is also survived by several nephews, one niece, grandchildren and great-grandchildren and brother-in-law Vito Caprio. He was preceded in death by his parents, Margaret Moran-D’Arcy and Michael John and sister, Mary Caprio.

Today’s Catholic will honor Bishop D’Arcy with a special tribute section in the Feb. 17 issue of the newspaper.

Rite of Election and Call to Continuing Conversion to be celebrated in diocesan cathedrals

The Rite of Election of Catechumens and the Call to Continuing Conversion of Candidates will be celebrated in the cathedrals of the Diocese of Fort Wayne-South Bend during the weekend of the First Sunday of Lent.

These rites will take place in the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception in downtown Fort Wayne on Feb. 16 at 7 p.m., and in St. Matthew Cathedral, South Bend, on Feb. 17 at 2 p.m.

Catechumens are those unbaptized people who will be entering the Catholic Church by receiving the sacraments of initiation — Baptism, Confirmation and the Holy Eucharist — at the Easter Vigil on the night of March 30. Candidates are those who are already baptized and are now preparing to complete their initiation or enter into full communion with the Catholic Church.

The catechumens and candidates come from parishes throughout the diocese. During the liturgy, each catechumen and candidate, as well as his or her godparent or sponsor, will be presented for recognition to Bishop Kevin C. Rhoades, bishop of the Diocese of Fort Wayne-South Bend. All together, around 600 catechumens and candidates — along with their godparents, sponsors, families and guests — are expected to attend the liturgies.

The catechumens inscribe their names within the “Book of the Elect,” which will be presented for Bishop Rhoades to sign during the Rite of Election, in an event called the Enrolment of Names. After participating in the Rite of Election, the catechumens will be referred to as the “elect,” because they will have been officially declared ready to receive the Easter sacraments this year.
HHS issues proposed exemptions from contraceptive coverage

BY PATRICIA ZAPOR

WASHINGTON (CNS) — Exemptions from the requirement to provide contraceptive coverage under the Affordable Care Act will be simplified to include many more types of religious institutions and accommodate the needs of self-insured Church entities that say they must keep a clear financial and functional wall between themselves and the provision of contraceptives.

A new set of proposed rules announced Feb. 1 by the Department of Health and Human Services attempt to accommodate objections raised by Catholic institutions, among others, that said the previous rules would force them to stop providing employee health insurance because the federal requirement to include contraceptive coverage violates their religious beliefs.

The Affordable Care Act includes coverage of contraceptives in all insurance plans. Under what has become known as the contraceptive mandate, the early version of proposed rules for this part of the nationwide health care program mandated all employers provide free coverage of contraceptives for their workers.

The first version of proposed rules for this coverage exempted only religious organizations whose main purpose is the conduct of faith and who employ and serve members of the faith. A later “accommodation” said non-exempt organizations could do this through third-party insurers.

The expansion would cover religious higher education institutions, health care providers and charitable agencies that do not discriminate on the basis of religion as to whom they serve or employ.

The new proposed rules specify that no exemption will be given to “for-profit, secular employers.” Some for-profit entities such as Christian-owned toy retailer Hobby Lobby have sued the federal government over the contraceptive mandate, saying that it violates the religious beliefs of the owners and the faith-based company outlook, and so they should be entitled to a religious exemption.

A brief statement from the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops said the conference welcomed “the opportunity to study the proposed regulations closely. We look forward to issuing a more detailed statement later.” The Catholic Health Association, which represents Catholic hospitals and health care agencies, also declined to comment on the changes until they were studied.

Others were quick to praise the proposed new rules for addressing the objections of Catholic and other entities, while some found fault with them, saying they would not resolve their objections.

The same day the proposed rules were released they were published in the Federal Register, opening a 60-day period for public comment. The rules are expected to be finalized this summer. Institutions are required to provide the coverage by August.

At a teleconference about the changes, Chiquita Brooks-LaSure, deputy director of policy and regulation in the HHS Center for Consumer Information and Insurance Oversight, said no nonprofit religious institution — including churches, universities, hospitals and charities — will have to “arrange, contract, pay for or refer for contraceptive insurance for employees or students who want it.

Even in the case of self-insured religious entities — which includes many dioceses and colleges — employees or insured students who want contraceptive coverage will be able to arrange it through outside insurance companies, at no cost to themselves and without financial or even administrative support of the faith-based institution, Brooks-LaSure said.

“The eligible organization would have no role in contracting, arranging, paying, or referring for this separate contraceptive coverage,” the proposal says. “Such coverage would be offered at no cost to plan participants and beneficiaries, that is, the issuer would provide benefits for contraceptive services without the imposition of any cost sharing requirement (such as a co-payment, co-insurance, or a deductible), premium, fee or other charge.”

The proposal includes several possible ways of arranging such insurance for employees of self-insured organizations.

Brooks-LaSure said that insurers will be able to provide the coverage at no cost to the individual because of the financial savings realized from preventing unwanted or unplanned pregnancies versus paying the costs associated with pregnancy, labor and delivery.

The new proposed rules for exempt religious organizations said that in order to clarify what kinds of organizations may qualify for the exemption, HHS is eliminating the first three prongs of the original four-pronged definition of qualifying religious organizations and clarifying the application of the fourth.

“Under this proposal, an employer that is organized and operates as a nonprofit entity and referred to in (defined sections of the tax code) would be considered a religious employer for purposes of the religious employer exemption,” the rules proposal said.

For this purpose, eligible organizations may include “trusts and unincorporated associations, as well as nonprofit, not-for-profit, non-stock, public benefit and similar types of corporations,” it said.

HHS said that by eliminating the first three prongs of the definition of exempt entities, “there no longer would be any question as to whether group health plans of houses of worship that provide educational, charitable or social services to their communities qualify for the exemption.”

The 80 pages of details include a discussion of the 200,000 public comments HHS received on the preliminary rules, giving examples of some of the situations presented for consideration in applying the rules.
INDIANAPOLIS — Promising college students have come to Sen. Jean Leising (R-Oldenburg) with a problem: a law passed in 2011 has brought their pursuits of a college degree to a screeching halt.

Former Indiana University student, Victoria Hickman, is one of an estimated 3,000 college students affected by the law. Hickman, with a 4.0 grade point average and only a year away from a college degree, had her college education abruptly cut short over a year ago when she was required to pay out-of-state tuition because of a 2011 law, which prohibits undocumented students who reside in Indiana from getting in-state tuition.

Leising, author of Senate Bill 207, would like to change this especially for students seeking higher education who were already enrolled in a higher education program when the law passed.

Leising is not alone. The Indiana Catholic Conference, the official public policy arm of the Catholic Church in Indiana, also supports the effort. “We are supportive of efforts to help undocumented college students complete their college education,” said Glenn Tebbe, ICC executive director.

“These college students are working hard to provide for themselves and should be able to do so. They and their families are paying sales, property and income taxes. In that way, they are supporting the state and its institutions and programs,” said Tebbe.

Tuition for Hickman, now at St. Mary’s Parish at Lafayette and East Jefferson (Lenten prayer service with ashes at 11:00 a.m.), with a 4.0 grade point average and only a year away from a college degree, had her college education abruptly cut short over a year ago when she was required to pay out-of-state tuition because of a 2011 law, which prohibits undocumented students who reside in Indiana from getting in-state tuition.

Leising said the last time she saw Hickman, she was waiting tables at a restaurant, and unsure if or when she would return to her home country, said Leising.

“The truth is we are throwing a road block in front of them because they can’t afford the out-of-state tuition. These kids also do not qualify for any kind of state student assistance,” said Leising.

“These kids all want to be legal,” said Leising. “One young person came to see me with her immigration attorney. The immigration attorney told me that there are young adults who are in their early 20s that might have to wait up to 20 years to achieve legal status because they have aged out of the system.”

Angela Smith Jones, of the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce has been working with Leising to address this issue said, “The Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce supports this legislation because it goes directly to the workforce issue. We do not want to restrict our strong pipeline of skilled workers.”

Jones said, “Employment openings exist in Indiana that require highly-skilled workers, but Indiana lacks enough highly-skilled people to fill them. A bipartisan effort aimed at addressing comprehensive immigration on the federal level is likely to have a positive impact on getting SB 207 passed. Leising is also optimistic that her bill can pass this year if she can just get her fellow Republican lawmakers to schedule it for a hearing.

Another reality Jones hopes lawmakers will consider is the potential brain drain Indiana could face as a result if Leising’s bill isn’t passed. “We talk about the brain drain problem in Indiana where highly-educated students go elsewhere to live once they are educated,” said Jones. “These hard-working, bright college students will leave Indiana and go to a neighboring state to receive their education and likely stay there if they can’t get in-state tuition here.” Jones said those who have been tracking the numbers estimate there could be upwards of 5,000 college students currently affected by this law and that number is only going to grow.

Jones believes that the national

Once more into the immigration law process: a familiar road

WASHINGTON (CNS) — They’ve been down this road before — trying to pass a far-reaching reform of the U.S. immigration system. The last time Congress passed a substantial immigration reform law in 1986, then-Father Nicholas DiMarzio, as director of Migration and Refugee Services for the U.S. Catholic bishops, was a part of coalition-building among interest groups such as the National Council of La Raza and the AFL-CIO. “It was a whole different political scene,” said now-Bishop DiMarzio of Brooklyn, N.Y. “Bipartisanship was possible. I don’t know how it’s going to work this time.”

In the mid-1980s, the problem of millions of immigrants being in the country without permission to be here was a relatively new issue, he told Catholic News Service. The situation affected around 5 million people in perhaps 10 states, mostly along the Mexican border plus New York, Florida and Illinois. Today, an estimated 11 million people lack legal immigration status and they live throughout the country.

The list of states with the fastest-growing populations of immigrants includes Tennessee, North Carolina, Arkansas, Delaware and Wyoming. The past history of the kind of coalition-building it took to pass previous immigration legislation may bear lessons for today as Congress launches what may be the best chance for comprehensive reform since the era of the Iran-Contra Affair and the initial public stock offering for Microsoft.

Media blitz can help youths find Gospel in digital deluge, speaker says

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — The best way the Church can be heard and seen amid the deluge of the information age is to launch a media blitz of simple answers to life’s deepest questions, a young Catholic journalist told a Vatican news conference. “People always say it should be quality over quantity; perhaps this was true once upon a time, but today quality is necessary,” said Alessio Antonelli, who works for the Conventual Franciscan-run San Francisco Review magazine in Assisi. “The Church is full of quality” with its rich 2,000-year history of writings and teachings, but “the problem is no one reads them; and today if you aren’t present in certain channels, it’s like you don’t even exist,” he said. Jan. 31, the feast of St. John Bosco, father and teacher of young people. Antonelli was one of a number of speakers presenting details about the Pontifical Council for Culture’s plenary assembly Feb. 6-9. He and Farasoo Mihaja Bermahazika, a university student from Madagascar, were invited to attend the assembly to help the council’s members and advisers explore this year’s topic of emerging youth cultures and how the Church can better respond pastorally. Cardinal Gianfranco Ravasi, the council’s president, said often it seems young people are disconnected from the real world around them, with eyes glued to smartphones and ears muffled by headphones. “In a certain sense they have put up a shield of self-exclusion” not only against “the unbearable social, political and religious difficulties we adults have created,” but also because “we have excluded them with our corruption and hypocrisy, precarious employment, unemployment and alienation,” he said.

New cardinals get their assignments to Roman Curia

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Two months after receiving their red hats, the six newest members of the College of Cardinals have received their assignments as members of various Vatican congregations, councils and offices — one of the clearest ways they help Pope Benedict XVI govern the universal Church. While keeping their jobs, the new assignees allow the cardinals to bring their experience and perspective to bear on the discussions and decisions of the central Church offices that assist the pope. Creating the new cardinals Nov. 24, Pope Benedict had told them: “Particularly through the work you do for the dioceses of the Roman Curia, you will be my valued co-workers, first and foremost in my apostolic ministry for the fullness of cathedrals, as pastor of the flock of Christ and prime guarantor of its doctrine, discipline and morals.”

The assignments announced by the Vatican Jan. 31 included: For U.S. Cardinal James M. Tips for those long absent from Confession

By Mark Patison

WASHINGTON (CNS) — After “Bless me, Father, for I have sinned” — even if they get that far — there are millions of Catholics who don’t exactly know what to say next.

This is especially true for Catholics who have not gone to Confession in years, or even decades.

Despite parishes and dioceses inviting inactive Catholics to return to Church at Lent, with the sacrament of Reconciliation (also known as Confession or Penance) in the foreground, it is likely Catholics are afraid, bewildered or even intimidated at the prospect of returning to the confessional after such a long period away from it.

A rote recitation of sins doesn’t seem quite right. Laundry lists, as some priests call them, are out. In fact, one advises, even devising a game plan before returning to the confessional is out.

“Just come. Don’t prepare. We’ll do it in there. I’ll help you with this. At the end of it, you’re going to think about things we didn’t cover. You can come again,” said Msgr. Richard Lavalley, pastor of St. Francis Xavier Parish in Winooksi, Vt.

“The more complicated it becomes, the worse it becomes. They (penitents) don’t know what to make of it and they become ashamed.”

The motivations for wanting to go back to Confession can be many, Msgr. Lavalley said he’s told priests, even during his first year as a priest. He has heard confessions from students at the parish grade school, and one boy was among the last to be brought forward.

“This kid’s behind the screen. He’s not talking to me. He’s just breathing. ‘Do you want to go to Confession? Please do.’ (I find my questions have to do with their relationships or to talk about their spiritual life a little bit. After all, that’s the purpose of Confession.) I say, ‘I’ve had two identical Confessions.’”

Msgr. Lavalley, ordained in 1964, still remembers a confession from his first year as a priest. He was hearing confessions from students at the parish grade school, and one boy was among the last to be brought forward.

“Just like that boy, Msgr. Lavalley told CNS, penitents are habitual sinners. “Everyone’s a habitual sinner, and so am I,” he said. “It’s not about sin, it’s about mercy and about God’s love.”

Msgr. Lavalley remembers himself as a grade schooler making confessions in his parish about which ones handed out sterner or lighter penances.

But he recalled one experience with a priest that made him the confession that I am. He was so kind and so wonderful, and I never forgot the penance he gave me. He said, ‘Can you say the name of Jesus once? I’ll say it for you.’ And he did it without sarcasm.

“That changed my life.”

What is Reconciliation?

Reconciliation (also known as Confession or Penance) is a sacrament instituted by Jesus Christ in His love and mercy to offer sinners forgiveness for offenses committed against God. At the same time, sinners reconcile with the Church, because it is also wounded by our sins.

Every time we sin, we hurt ourselves, other people and God. In Reconciliation, we acknowledge our sins before God and His Church. We express our sorrow in a meaningful way, receive the forgiveness of Christ and His Church, make reparation for what we have done, and resolve to do better in the future.

The forgiveness of sins involves four parts:

• Confession: a sincere sorrow for having offended God, and the most important act of the penitent. There can be no forgiveness of sin if we do not have sorrow and a firm resolve not to repeat our sin.

• Absolution: the priest speaks the words by which “God, the Father of Mercies” reconciles a

ELKHART — From high academic standards and extracurricular activities to a strong sense of Catholic identity and community, St. Thomas has a lot to offer.

The principal, Christopher Kolakovich has a long history at the school — he’s been principal for three years, but taught in the building for 11 years and also attended St. Thomas.

The largest of the three Catholic elementary schools in Elkhart County, there are about 381 students enrolled in kindergarten through eighth grades. The school was built in 1950 and completed a renovation project in 2010, adding four classrooms, a student health center, teacher’s lounge and a “more identifiable grand entrance.”

Academically, Kolakovich said they strive to offer instruction tailored to meet each student’s needs. For example, for fifth through eighth grades they have the ALEKS computer program to support math curriculum, which comes with a program for each individual’s math needs, helping to move them forward.

For kindergarten through third grades the school offers a Minds and Motion program, a parent-volunteer run program with a lot of exercise and physical play. "It stresses balance, motor skills and visual tracking and research has shown it helps students concentrate better and be more focused,” Kolakovich explained.

Extracurricular activities St. Thomas has fall and spring sports teams. Their mascot is the Spartans. Students in seventh and eighth grades host clinics in volleyball and basketball for younger students.

The school offers beginning and advanced bands, a middle school choir and middle school bells choir.

St. Thomas partners with Premier Arts Theatre Company to involve students in drama productions. They also work with third through eighth-grade students to produce a musical. The students pay a fee, audition and rehearse with the theatre company and the all-student musical is held at The Lerner Theatre.

“They do a quality job with our students and they get to be on a real stage — it’s definitely a unique extracurricular,” Kolakovich said.

Community service is a big focus at St. Thomas — each grade level has a special project. For example, kindergartners collect clothes for The Christ Child, fourth graders had a bake sale for the Elkhart County Humane Society and eighth graders participated in a “seed to feed” program and picked potatoes and brought them to a local food pantry.

Building on community and Catholic identity, St. Thomas has “school family” groups — led by an eighth grader and consisting of students of all grade levels, they have special programs for the school family groups, usually tied to the liturgical season. They offer Advent prayer services and Holy Thursday Seder meals for the groups.

But according to Kolakovich, the biggest strength is the people. "The students first of all — we have a great group of kids who treat each other with respect, … take education seriously and appreciate being in a Catholic school — where they can talk about God and pray,” he said.

He went on to praise the dedicated staff, who feel they have a vocation and embrace their Catholic identity, the parent volunteers, who are so service minded, and their pastor.

“Father Bill (Sullivan) is a big supporter of the school. He really cares about the school and likes to greet the kids when they arrive and when they’re dismissed,” Kolakovich added.

St. Thomas offers a “daily dose of faith” that helps keep students grounded.

BY KAREN CLIFFORD

ELKHART — The Savior, a saint, students and snow were in the mix as Bishop Kevin C. Rhoades celebrated Mass and visited St. Thomas the Apostle School in Elkhart on Jan. 31.

On the memorial day of St. John Bosco, Bishop Rhoades explained the background of the saint to a large congregation filled with students, teachers, administrators, parents and parishioners. Bosco was an Italian parish priest, who worked with poor young boys to offer them an education that incorporated spiritual guidance and catechetical teaching.

In 1859, some of these same boys became a part of a group started by Bosco called the Salesians, who encouraged education and mission work. Bosco later formed a group for women called the Salesian Sisters that encompassed the same values as the original group.

Bishop Rhoades spoke of Jesus’ love for children by referring to the Gospel of Matthew when Christ said, “Let the children come to me,” and “Unless you become like little children you will not enter the kingdom of heaven.”

Bishop Rhoades explained that drawing children to Jesus is the number one reason for Catholic schools.

“A Catholic school should not only be a school of academics or athletics, but also a school of holiness,” Bishop Rhoades emphasized.

During his visit to school classrooms, Bishop Rhoades encountered many faith questions from students. In the kindergarten class, the bishop asked the students “If I am a shepherd, who are the sheep?” After one student replied, “We are,” another student said, “But we don’t look anything like sheep!”

The first grade class impressed Bishop Rhoades when he asked them what they were studying in religion and a student answered that they were studying St. Thomas Aquinas. “That’s the first time I have ever had a first-grade class tell me they are studying St. Thomas Aquinas!” Bishop Rhoades remarked.

After learning that fifth graders were studying the seven sacraments of the Church, Bishop Rhoades asked a volunteer to come to the front of the class so that the bishop could show the students the outward signs of the sacrament of Holy Orders for a priest’s ordination. He asked a young man to kneel so that he could demonstrate the laying on of hands, and then later showed how the anointing of the priest’s hands with sacred chrism oil is done.

One of the biggest surprises and highlights for Bishop Rhoades during his classroom visits came when the seventh grade, under the leadership of teacher Mary Lucchese, recited the “Our Father” prayer in Latin.

Father Bill Sullivan, pastor of St. Thomas the Apostle Parish, offered his reflections on Catholic education.

“As the bishop was saying earlier today, the reason for our school is the person of Jesus Christ. When a child is brought to the waters of Baptism, we think of one of the Gospel passages where Jesus said, ‘Let the children come to me.’ The parents believe that the relationship is not only to be nurtured in the home, but on a daily basis in their education,” said Father Sullivan.

“Our schools are very blessed with academics, and I believe that has been proven time and time again. But when we touch the spiritual life of a child, it is part of who a person is as well,” said Father Sullivan.
FORT WAYNE — In his three-part homily, Bishop Kevin C. Rhoades left students at Fort Wayne’s Bishop Luers High School with some very important thoughts during National Catholic Schools Week as he celebrated Mass Tuesday morning, Jan. 29.

First he updated them on Bishop John D’Arcy’s, his bishop emeritus, health condition and asked for their daily prayers as their former chaplain battles an aggressive cancer. He assured them of Bishop D’Arcy’s deep love for his Bishop Luers family and how dear to his heart they are.

Next, he helped them to understand the Letter to the Hebrews from the first reading, explaining that no animal sacrifices could ever do what the ultimate sacrifice the Son of God did once and for all, when He offered Himself bringing about reconciliation, peace and salvation. “This is what the Mass is for us today,” said Bishop Rhoades.

Finally, he challenged the Knights to say the Our Father every morning when they wake up and mean what they say when they recite “Thy will be done.” He referenced the passage from the Gospel, “My mother and my brothers are whoever does the will of God.”

And Bishop Rhoades told students to ask themselves when discerning important decisions, “What would God want me to do? What is the loving thing to do? For doing His will is the only true way to bring us joy and peace in our lives.”

He continued, “We must know His will, so we can do His will.” Bishop Rhoades gave a personal example from his own life when in college he was up on a mountain praying to know if God was leading him to the priesthood. After much inner struggle and unrest, he was flooded with a peace about going to the seminary — a peace that has lasted now for 30 years.

Before his final blessing, Bishop Rhoades expressed his gratitude for the beautiful Luers choir, Mass participants and his concelebrants — Fathers Dan Durkin and Ben Muhlenkamp.

Then Bishop Rhoades continued his tradition, which began with his first visit to Bishop Luers, a question-and-answer session with the student body.

The first student carried on another tradition, asking for a hug, while others went on to inquire about the bishop’s favorite Bible story, Super Bowl predictions and his take on this year’s March for Life. The bishop shared that he has been in Washington D.C. each year since he was in high school and though in frigid weather this year, his favorite part of the event was walking together, united as a joyful, courageous witness of the sacredness of life.

The bishop was encouraged by students to start a Twitter account and was taught the meaning of the acronym YOLO (You only live once). Word had spread from his session at Bishop Dwenger, so the bishop narrated the story of his close encounter with death when he felt the strong urge to get off the train in Bari, Italy, which was later bombed by terrorists at the next stop, killing 85 passengers.

After telling about the first car he owned and his intramural football days, Bishop Rhoades agreed to sing along to the school song if students would in turn sing the recessional hymn with the same gusto.

After Mass, the bishop proceeded to the cafeteria, then spent time in the hallways with young and old alike, visiting with one of his tour guides for the day, young sophomore Joseph Lewis and health teacher, John Sorg, who is in his 50th year at Bishop Luers. Lewis detailed, “I was called to the office and asked to greet the bishop at the door upon his arrival. Of course, I said ‘yes!’”

The bishop lit a candle in the beautiful grotto before stopping by Tyler McAtee’s morality class. There he quoted one of his favorites from Blessed Pope John Paul II, “Authentic freedom is not to do what we want, but what we ought.”

The bishop guaranteed the group of juniors, “The truth will always set you free.”

In Meg Hanlon’s Catholic social teaching course, the bishop was interested to learn the seniors were studying the four cardinal virtues — prudence, justice, fortitude and temperance. He stressed the importance of the relationship between charity and justice while suggesting students let the Gospels be their “Book of Life” as they head to college.

“Stay close to God and surround yourself with good friends, those who share your morals,” he said. The annual visit culminated with a meeting of the theology instructors and campus ministry staff and finally, a one-on-one with longtime Principal Mary Keefner.
MONROEVILLE STUDENTS RALLY FOR SCHOOL CHOICE

In addition to National Catholic Schools Week, parents, students and staff from St. Joseph School and community leaders hosted Painting Monroeville Yellow celebrating National School Choice Week. On Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 29, Principal Stanley Liponoga led students, donned in yellow scarves, through the streets of town, spreading the word of school choice and showing support for effective education alternatives for all children. The participants marched from their current school on Mulberry Street to what they hope to be their future facility for the 2013-2014 school year in the former Monroeville Elementary building. There they chose to pop, rather than release, yellow air-filled balloons. Participants raised awareness about private, public and parochial School Choice options. Principal Liponoga stressed, “Parents need to be aware that they have a choice in the State of Indiana. Indiana is leading the way in education reform and it benefits all parents to be able to send their children to the school that is best suited for their education.”

St. Augustine Year of Faith speaker asks ‘Why be Catholic?’

SOUTH BEND — Dynamic nationally-renowned speaker Deacon Harold Burke-Sivers of EWTN will speak at St. Augustine Parish (1501 W. Washington St., South Bend) on the topic “Why Be Catholic?” on Sunday, Feb. 10, from 12:30-2 p.m.

The Notre Dame alumni will tackle questions like: “Why listen to a Church that makes all of these rules that inhibit my freedom?” and “What’s the big deal about being Catholic and why does it matter?” He’ll also touch on Divine Revelation and the sacraments. Although his presentation is free, support is welcome via publication sales and a freewill offering. His presentation will follow St. Augustine’s 10:30 a.m. Gospel Choir Mass and an optional pancake breakfast ($4 admission).

Alliance for Catholic Education to celebrate 20 years with campaign, bus tour

NOTRE DAME — The University of Notre Dame’s Alliance for Catholic Education (ACE) is planning a cross-country celebration of Catholic schools that will mark ACE’s 20 years of service to underserved children and to the Church’s mission of educating hearts and minds.

“Celebrating the Gift of Catholic Schools” is the message that will literally roll out from the Notre Dame campus this fall, when ACE leaders, faculty and staff will travel by bus across the country with a specially outfitted tour bus, provided by a generous benefactor that will bring a Notre Dame presence to cities big and small. The bus tour will come home to the Notre Dame campus for events on the weekend of the Notre Dame-Navy football game in early November to commemorate the first ACE recruiting meeting, on Nov. 4, 1993. Those students who attended the ACE “1” cohort and began their preparation for teaching following their graduation from Notre Dame, in the summer of 1994. The “ACE 20” cohort, consisting of about 90 graduates competitively selected from colleges and universities across the United States, begins its two-year formation experience this summer.

Segments of the bus tour will continue in spring 2014, and the broader celebration will culminate that summer.

Evening of reflection for medical personnel offered

FORT WAYNE — An evening of reflection for physicians, nurses and other health care workers will be held Friday, March 1, from 7-8:30 p.m. at St. John the Baptist Catholic Church, 4500 S. Fairfield Ave., in Fort Wayne. The program, sponsored by Dr. Jerome Lejeune Catholic Physicians Guild of Northeast Indiana, will feature Father James Bromwich of the missions of St. Philip Neri, and chaplain of the Northeast Indiana Catholic Physicians Guild, and includes Eucharistic Adoration, Scripture reading, horns, quiet prayer and petitions — focused on the mission and work of all health care workers. Spouses are welcome.

Woo to speak at Holy Cross College spring business seminar series

NOTRE DAME — Prominent business and community leaders once again bring their successful stories to Holy Cross College and the Michiana community. The “Practical Lessons in Success: stories of community leaders,” notes Brother John Paige, president of Holy Cross College.

“We’re fortunate to be able to expand our stories to national interests as well as local success stories,” notes Dr. Carolyn Y. Woo, president and CEO of Catholic Relief Services, leads the series on Feb. 13.

‘40 Days for Life’ campaign begins Feb. 13

SOUTH BEND — People of all faiths are invited to join in prayer and fasting along with peaceful vigil and community outreach during the 40 Days for Life campaign, which begins Wednesday, Feb. 13, and ends March 24. Prayer will be held at the Prayer Peninsula next to the abortion facility on Ironwood Circle, particularly on Tuesdays and Fridays from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. and Fridays from noon until 6 p.m., the times when abortions take place. All age groups and post-abortion counseling, and the Holy Family Adoption Agency.
Defend traditional family, rights of others, archbishop says

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — While the Catholic Church opposes legal sanctions against homosexuality and favors legal protections for unmarried people living together, it must defend traditional marriage for the good of society, said the president of the Pontifical Council for the Family.

Archbishop Vincenzo Paglia, council president, said the Catholic Church affirms “the equal dignity of every child of God. No one lacks the dignity of being a child of God, so that is unthinkable.”

While the Church opposes recognizing gay unions as “marriage,” he said, it affirms the full dignity of homosexual men and women. “If a couple wants to stay together, I would work to overturn it,” he said, adding that he believed there are still “20 or 25 countries” that define homosexuality as a crime.

Archbishop Paglia also called for greater efforts to ensure legal protection and inheritance rights for people who are living together, but not married. “To promote justice and to protect the weak,” he said, legal means must be found to guarantee rights and regulate inheritance.

“Do not call it marriage,” he said.

As an increasing number of states and nations move toward recognizing same-sex unions, he said Western societies “risk making decisions, which can have consequences” that people haven’t thought about.

“Will the words ‘mother’ and ‘father’ disappear from our vocabulary in favor of ‘Parent A’ and ‘Parent B?’” he asked, referring to gay couples and their children.

“With millions of only children, will the words ‘brother’ and ‘sister’ still have any meaning?”

Meeting journalists at the Vatican Feb. 4, Archbishop Paglia presented several of his council’s planned activities for 2013, including coordination of the Oct. 26-27 international Pilgrimage of Families to the Vatican for the Year of Faith.

While the formal enrollment process for the pilgrimage hasn’t opened, he said families interested in participating can send an email toroma2013@family.va to request more information.

Archbishop Paglia said those interested in the good of the human person should rejoice over one of the key evolutions in the understanding of marriage over the centuries: the recognition that the union must be based on love between the spouses.

However, he said, “the family is not just about affection.” Marriage and true family life also must include the potential to generate new life, to educate children as good human beings and good citizens and to care for the weak.

“Democracy needs solid and stable families,” he said. The sharing, caring and sacrificing people learn in their families is what spurs them to extend their defense of the rights of others to the social and political realm, and to protect and care for weaker members of society.
The order of perfection, charity

Those who desire to grow in sanctity in accord with their baptismal vocation to holiness of life often imagine their progress in terms of what might be called the order of perfection: “Be perfect, as your heavenly Father is perfect.” Jesus clearly taught (Mt 5:48). And certainly from one perspective, this is both faithful to the Gospel and noble in intention.

However, the inherent peril of seeing one’s progress in terms of the order of perfection are twofold: first, in this age (as Augustine reminds us) we will battle sin and temptation until we draw our last breath, and we will ultimately be unable to reach the kind of perfection to which we are called (if by that we mean an actualized and abiding sinlessness); that will be the gift bestowed upon us in the age to come; second, we can unwittingly begin to envision our progress in terms of fulfilling obligations, checking boxes, completing a list of imagined accomplishments. And, at the end of each day, it will be painfully obvious that we have not made nearly the progress we would like.

Frustration and despondency (the bane of the spiritual life, what the Church fathers call “acedia”) can often attend such an examination of conscience, and we can drive ourselves into a kind of perfectionism, which simply induces further frustration, because the perfection we rather unrealistically desire seems always to elude our grasp.

It might be more fruitful to change our model or paradigm of the progress we desire. Perhaps rather than operating within the order of perfection, we might consider re-envisioning our life in terms of the order of charity. Now, it should be made immediately clear that we are actually speaking of the same life, the same desire, the same progress.

However, in changing the paradigm, in re-crafting the way we conceive of the progress we desire, by recalibrating the standard from the goal or end as perfection to charity as the end, we may find it much easier to make progress without the angst of a kind of works-righteousness perfectionism that can dog us as we make our way toward heaven.

If we stop thinking of “perfection” as the goal and begin to see charity, the love of God poured into our lives.

THE SUNDAY GOSPEL

MSGR. OWEN F. CAMPION

5th Sunday in Ordinary Time

Lk 5:1-11

The Book of Isaiah is the source of the first reading this weekend. Written before the Babylonian conquest, this prophecy was composed when, relatively speaking, and with some qualification, the southern kingdom of the Hebrews was tranquil and prosperous.

Nevertheless, Isaiah felt that he was called by God to confront the people about their infidelity to God or at least their lukewarmness in responding to their role as God’s special people. The story, told in this reading, conveys by its drama and bluntness the totality required in Isaiah’s willingness to answer the divine calling to be a prophet.

Here, in this reading, Isaiah displays the fervor and power that are typical of the writing in all three sections of this ancient book.

Paul’s First Epistle to the Corinthians provides the next reading. Paul recalls the death of Jesus and then the spirit of the Resurrection, giving the details that Peter, whom Paul calls “Cephas,” using the Greek term, saw Jesus after the Resurrection, that James saw Jesus, and that even 500 of those who believed in the Gospel saw the risen Lord.

The reading also is autobiographical. Paul declares that he himself is an Apostle, having been called by the Lord. However, he calls himself “least” among the apostles, since he, unlike the others, once persecuted Christ living in the community of Christians.

Still, God called him. Unrestrained by this sense of personal unworthiness, Paul wholeheartedly responds to this calling. He is God’s instrument. Through him, God works the plan of redemption and mercy.

St. Luke’s Gospel supplies the last reading. This particular passage shows the fine line hand at work in the composition of the Gospel of Luke, and by extension the other Gospels. Here Luke shows that he uses the Gospel of Mark as a source, but then he adds details drawn from a source also used by John.

Of course, Jesus is the central figure in the story. But, the next most important figure is Peter. A fisherman, along with his brother, Andrew, both of them living in Capernaum, Peter was in his boat on the Sea of Galilee when Jesus embarked. The Lord began to preach to the people assembled on the shore.

Then Jesus told Peter to row into deeper water and lower the nets into the water. Peter mildly protests, saying that he and his associates have been fishing all night, but with no success.

Nonetheless, Peter does as told. The result is that they are so filled with fish that Peter and his companions have difficulty in pulling the nets aboard.

Humbly, in the presence of the Lord’s power, Peter confesses his own sinfulness. Jesus sweeps beyond this admission, recognizing Peter’s faith instead, and calling Peter thereafter to fish for souls.

CRS Rice Bowl

“For Lent, For Life. What you give up for Lent changes lives.” This is the theme that sets the stage for Lenten commitments to Catholic Relief Services (CRS) Rice Bowl. During this Year of Faith, we are asked to renew our spirituality and deepen our faith in Christ. This Lent, CRS Rice Bowl gives us all a beautiful opportunity to pray, fast, and give alms in ways that can change lives.

Prayer: We pray for others in the global Church. We reflect on what type of person God calls us to be, and we ask for His guidance in living up to our potential.

Fast: We fast, or give things up, as a reminder to remove things in our lives that get in the way of our relationship with God. Fasting also relates to removing from those who experience hunger.

Giving: We give alms with a spirit of generosity to our brothers and sisters in need, honoring Jesus’ call to serve our neighbors.

Rice Bowl is a tradition of CRS, the official international humanitarian agency of the Catholic community in the United States and is active in more than 100 countries worldwide helping more than 100 million of the world’s poorest people. Five of these countries are highlighted throughout Lent.

Week one: Improving agriculture in Burkina Faso

Week two: Stopping tuberculosis in East Timor

Week three: Early childhood education in Lesotho

Week four: Fostering savings in the Dominican Republic

Week five: Providing clean water in Pakistan

During week six of Lent, Rice Bowl highlights the Diocese of Oakland, California, with whom they have done helping those in need with contributions from CRS Rice Bowl. Seventy-five percent of contributions help the poor and vulnerable outside our country, while 25 percent of contributions address local hunger and poverty issues within our diocese.

CRS Rice Bowl is a great opportunity to learn more about Catholic teachings by focusing on themes each week of Lent.

Week one: Option for the poor.
We have the obligation to reach those most in need.

Week two: Community and participation.
How we participate in our families and communities, from our daily actions to our policy decisions, affects each and every person.

Week three: Rights and responsibilities.
We must take responsibility to protect the rights of all people.

Week four: Dignity of work and rights of workers.
The opportunity to work and earn a living is a right of all people.

Week five: Care for God’s creation.
Through protecting the environment in which we live, we respect the goodness of nature, a gift God has given to us.

All of us can actively participate in CRS Rice Bowl. Priests, parish and school leaders, individuals and families can incorporate the four components of the program — prayer, fasting, learning and giving — into their Lenten observances. This year CRS has developed new resources to engage us in their work throughout Lent.

Families and individuals, please take a free Rice Bowl when they are offered in your parish. Each Rice Bowl comes with a spiritual guide that provides weekly activities for you and your family to connect your fasting and almsgiving to the stories of our brothers and sisters in need. You can also try some recipes from the featured countries and participate in Rice Bowl online by registering at crsricebowl.org or crsplatodearroz.org (Spanish) to receive weekly reflections via email. The website provides an online giving option. Parish resources offered include homily notes, bulletin announcements, Prayers of the Faithful, Stations of the Cross, Lenten soup supper activities and more, to bring the program into all aspects of the parish Lenten observance.

Schools and religious education programs resources include lesson plans for grades 1-12, videos and additional online resources to use in the classroom.

To order free materials for CRS Rice Bowl, visit crsricebowl.org or crsplatodearroz.org, or call (800) 222-0025. Resources are available in both English and Spanish. The marriage debate III — The nature of things

Cardinal Francis George of Chicago is, arguably, the most intellectually accomplished bishop in the history of the American episcopate. Earlier this year, when the Illinois legislature began to consider changing state law to “accommodate those of the same sex who wish to marry” one another (as the cardinal put it), Professor Dr. George gave the readers of his column in the Chicago archdiocesan newspaper a lesson in metaphysics—and, I suspect, a high-voltage intellectual jolt:

“Sexual relations between a man and a woman are naturally and necessarily different from sexual relations between same-sex partners. This truth is part of the common sense of the human race. It was true before the existence of either Church or State, and it will continue to be true when there is no State of Illinois and no United States of America. A proposal to change this truth about marriage in civil law is less a threat to religion than it is an affront to human reason and the common good of society. It means we are all to pretend to accept something we know is physically impossible: anything can be changed by an act of will. The legal ne plus ultra of this cultural phenomenon was in 2007, when the Spanish government allowed Juan to become Juanita on his/her national identity card by simply declaring (absent any surgical alteration) that he/she was a woman. Cardinal George was suggesting, correctly in my view, that same-sex “marriage” is the same, essentially incoherent denial of givenness manifest in Spain’s Law 3/2007.

In his Christmas address to the Roman Curia last December, Pope Benedict XVI raised similar issues. We deplore the “manipulation of nature” today “where our environment is concerned,” the pope noted; but when it comes to human affairs, human “nature” has become a matter of our ‘choice.’ Which means that we no longer experience ourselves as unique compositions of matter and spirit. The ‘matter’ of our humanness is mere ephemera; we are merely, as Pope Benedict put it, “spirit and will.”

Who are the big losers, the pope asked, when societies and cultures lose their grip on the reality that “man and women are complementary versions of what it means to be human?” The family is certainly a loser: for if there is no “duality of man and woman” that is accepted as ‘natural,’ we can be as fatuous as a statute repealing rally.” And if people were shocked that children are, in this bizarre new world, no longer the subject of rights, Rather, “the child has become one more person, people have a right and which they have a right to obtain.” The freedom to be creative, which finds its most awesome expression in procreation, has been reduced to the freedom to create myself, however I imagine to be.

“The marriage debate is thus about more than the legal definition of marriage, although that is serious enough. It’s a debate about whether there are any given in the human condition, or whether willfulness and self-assertion trump reality at every point. If they do, what happens to democracies built on self-evident truths?”

In final week of regular season, ICCL’s Lions look towards coveted crown

BY JOE KOZINSKI

SOUTH BEND, MISHAWAKA — The final weekend of the Inter-City Catholic League season had a school trying to earn their first ever varsity basketball championship and another focused on being the spoiler.

The Lions of St. Pius X were holding on to the league tiebreaker as they squared off against a west side foe, the Trojans of Holy Family at Saint Joseph High School.

The Lions had treated the league like opposing gladiators in the coliseum as they devoured their schedule with the exception of a hiccup in week two against St. Matthew. Since then it has been all green and gold.

The Holy Family contingency had been a promising team that would fight and scrape against all comers. They also boasted a couple of solid big men in Will Jeffers and Mark Mayfield.

The game started off with the Lions leading 25-10 and the stingy defensive press that set the stage for a 14-5 first quarter. The Trojans had their opportunities, but the basket seemed to shrink a couple of sizes every time the ball was shot in its direction.

The Lions of St. Pius not only assembled a trio of formidable post players in Trent Stoner, Walter Ellis and Brian Gursky, but during the second stanza, the three point shooters of Tony Carmola, Zack Lattimer and Reece Jackowiak threw it in from beyond the arc and stretched the lead to 32-13 heading to intermission.

Opening of the second half would not be good for the Trojans as their coach under his breath commented, “sleepwalking is one word, no hyphen,” as the Lions aggressive play pushed the margin to 29 points within the first two-and-a-half minutes.

A Trojan time out, a wake up call, gutsy play and a 10-2 run of...
Pope calls for protection of life, greater investment in families

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Pope Benedict XVI called for greater investment in families and protecting life.

As the Italian Catholic Church marked Day for Life Feb. 3, the pope used his Sunday Angelus address to echo the Italian bishops’ call to “invest in life and the family, also as an effective response” to the current economic crisis.

He greeted the Berlin-based Movement for Life and praised the European-wide initiative, “One of Us,” “so that Europe may always be a place where every human being is protected in his dignity.”

The “One of Us” movement is collecting signatures in EU countries to push the European Commission to propose legal protections of human life from conception to its natural end.

The pope also greeted the faculty of the University of Rome’s college of medicine, encouraging them, especially professors of obstetrics and gynecology, “to educate health workers in the culture of life.”

He said Jesus came to the world, not to build or achieve human consensus, but “to testify to the truth.”

“The true prophet doesn’t obey anyone else but God and puts himself at the service of truth, ready to pay personally,” he said.

He said Jesus was a prophet of love and truth, which are “two names for the same thing, two names of God.”

their own powered by forward Justin Groves cut the margin to 47-26 with just six minutes standing between St. Pius X and the coveted crown.

Despite the tough and hard-nosed play of the Trojans, the Lions stayed true to their game plan and fundamentally closed out the game, 53-38, placing them on top of the league entering the tournament.

“We have been focusing our practices on working hard playing together as a team,” commented St. Pius X head coach, Brian Stawski. “I think that we have a number of kids that can play high school basketball and we are working through some motion offense to get them ready for that level.”

“As for the ICCL tournament, there are some very good teams in the league and you can’t take anyone for granted,” added Stawski. “Christ the King, St. Matthew and St. Thomas are just a few that are very dangerous and have put together nice seasons.”

Christ the King was looking for the upset of St. Pius (the Lions held the head to head tie breaker) as they closed out their season with an identical record by dispatching Queen of Peace, 40-27, behind the double-digit scoring efforts of Michael Minion and Hunter West.

St. Thomas outpaced St. Joseph, 44-42, on Saturday and completed the weekend sweep by more than doubling the Falcons of St. Jude, 49-21.

Holy Cross was not as fortunate as they played three games losing to Mishawaka Catholic, 37-25, Corpus Christi, 40-22, and then their finale, 39-27, after the double-digit scoring efforts of Michael Minion and Hunter West.

Justin DeClark led the Bulldogs of St. Matthew with 11 points and a 31-22 victory over the Bulldogs of Our Lady of Hungary.

The Knights and the Cougars of Corpus Christi knocked off the Panthers of St. Anthony, 49-28, to close out the regular season.

A complete post-season schedule will be posted on the web site at icclsports.org.

sinner to Himself through the merits of the Cross.
A guide to make a good Confession is located at right.

How to make a good Confession
Confession is not difficult, but it does require preparation.
We should begin with prayer, placing ourselves in the presence of God, our loving Father. We seek healing and forgiveness through repentance and a resolve to sin no more.

Then we review our lives since our last confession, searching our thoughts, words, and actions for that which did not conform to God’s command to love him and one another through his laws and the laws of his Church.

This is called an examination of conscience. To make an examination of conscience:
• Begin with a prayer asking for God’s help.
• Review your life with the help of some questions, which are based on the Ten Commandments.
• Tell God how truly sorry you are for your sins.
• Make a firm resolution not to sin again.

The Light Is On For You materials provide the following examination of conscience.

Examination of conscience
Recall your sins. Prayerfully ask yourself what you have done with full knowledge and full consent against God’s and the Church’s commandments.
Do I pray to God every day? Have I thanked God for His gifts to me?
Did I put my faith in danger through readings contrary to Catholic teachings or involvement in non-Catholic sects? Did I engage in superstitious practices: palm reading or fortune-telling?
Did I take illicit drugs?
Did I consent to, recommend, advise or actively take part in an abortion?
Did I willfully look at pornography, entertain impure thoughts, or engage in impure conversations or actions? Did I use artificial means to prevent conception?
Was I unfaithful to my spouse?
Did I engage in sexual activity outside of marriage?
Did I steal or damage another’s property? Have I been honest and just in my business relations?
Have I been responsive to the needs of the poor and respected the dignity of others?
Did I tell lies? Did I sin by calumny, or defraction, of others?
Did I judge others rashly in serious matters?

Did I hate or quarrel with anyone, or desire revenge? Did I refuse to forgive? Was I disrespectful?
Did I get drunk? Did I take illicit drugs?
Did I consent to, recommend, advise or actively take part in an abortion?

Thirty-five teens gathered at Fort Wayne’s Our Lady of the Angels Oratory on Dec. 1 as part of a teen retreat titled, “Fatima’s Call to Youth.” The day included First Saturday devotions, talks about the Fatima message and a Marian procession. The event was organized by the Franciscan Brothers Minor and the Fort Wayne-South Bend Division of the World Apostolate of Fatima.
