Cardinal says Planned Parenthood videos illustrate ‘throwaway culture’

Rallies in diocese advocate defunding Planned Parenthood

WASHINGTON (CNS) — Boston Cardinal Sean P. O’Malley said that Planned Parenthood officials’ videotaped descriptions of how fetal tissue and organs are procured for researchers during abortions illustrates what Pope Francis calls today’s “throwaway culture.”

The officials also discuss what the organization charges for the body parts, which opponents of Planned Parenthood said violates federal law and the organization said are customary handling fees paid by research labs.

Cardinal O’Malley, in a July 29 statement, said Pope Francis calls abortion “the product of a ‘wide-spread mentality of profit, the throwaway culture, which has today enslaved the hearts and minds of so many.’”

He made the comments as chairman of the U.S. bishops’ Committee on Pro-Life Activities.

Archbishop Joseph E. Kurtz of Louisville, Kentucky, president of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops, said in a radio interview that he was “appalled” by the videos but even more “appalled at the reality of abortion, the taking of the life itself.”

Hayes to be consecrated to a life of virginity

All are invited to the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception in Fort Wayne for a special Mass celebrated by Bishop Kevin C. Rhoades at 10 a.m. on Saturday, Aug. 15 — the Solemnity of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary. During the Mass, Jessica Hayes, a theology teacher at Bishop Dwenger High School in Fort Wayne, will be officially consecrated to a life of virginity.

A consecrated virgin is called to a spousal union with Christ lived in the midst of the world. She takes a lifelong vow of virginity for the purpose of giving herself more fully to Jesus through a life of prayer. She continues to live and work among the lay faithful, and discerns her specific service to the Church with her local bishop. Please come to celebrate the Assumption and participate in this extraordinary rite.

Jessica Hayes to dedicate her life to God and Church

FORT WAYNE — For Jessica Hayes, what began a few years ago as a desire to find God’s will in her life has culminated in a unique religious vocation. Hayes will dedicate her life to Christ in a special ceremony, the Rite of Consecration to a Life of Virginity, on Aug. 15, the solemnity of the Assumption, making her the sole consecrated virgin in the Diocese of Fort Wayne-South Bend.

Hayes, a theology teacher at Bishop Dwenger High School in Fort Wayne, has long felt a yearning to give herself more fully to the Church, and through the process of spiritual direction she began to consider the religious life, visiting two religious congregations. Hayes says, though she appreciates the beauty of that life, she felt it was not where she was being called.

It was while attending the funeral of Sister Jane Carew, a consecrated virgin herself, that Hayes felt God’s calling on her life becoming clearer. It was there that she first learned of the life of a consecrated virgin, and after some time in discernment that all the things I wanted most were in that way of life.”

Hayes describes a consecrated virgin as someone who has a vocation to a spousal intimacy with Christ, but lives in the midst of the world. “My community,” says Hayes, “is among the laity. My parish, my family, my students — that’s my community.”

In this vocation Hayes will continue to support herself through her teaching career, live in her own home, keep her name, wear regular street clothes and interact within the community.
SAN FRANCISCO (CNS) — To Andrew Galvan, Blessed Junipero Serra is a stalwart of faith and mission worthy of the title “saint.”

“He was all wood and nails. He was a tough dude. He fought, he defended, he wrangled, he was frustrated and he was frustrat-ing,” Galvan told Catholic News Service.

A descendant of tribal members from the San Francisco Bay region, Galvan traces his family roots to California’s first Christians, thousands of whom were baptized and confirmed by the 18th-century Spanish missionary.

Pope Francis will canonize Blessed Junipero Sept. 23 in Washington. Galvan said he hopes to be there.

Long a promoter of Blessed Serra, Galvan is the museum director and curator of Old Mission Dolores, the sixth-oldest of California’s 21 historical missions.

He said Blessed Serra was “on fire” to heed Christ’s call to witness, like Jesus’s apostles and St. Francis of Assisi.

“His goal in life, from the time he was a novice … was to be a missionary to Indians in the Americas, to bring the Gospel message where it had never gone before.”

Galvan said the friar, who was beatified in 1988 by St. John Paul II, never veered from that objective and went about it tirelessly, foregoing any convenience for himself.

According to his biographers, he slept little, traveled thousands of miles by foot, quietly endured injury and pain and modestly and spent long hours in prayer. When Blessed Serra thought he was failing in his efforts to evangelize, he blamed such defeat on his own sins.

“My God, I couldn’t live the life he lived,” Galvan said.

Miquel Joseph Serra took the Franciscan habit at age 17. He chose the name Junipero, after a Franciscan saint of Spain.

Blessed Junipero did not reach California’s first Christians, thousands of whom were baptized and confirmed by the 18th-century Spanish missionary.

“The colonization destroyed the native people along the California coast because of the destruction of the native environment, the changing of lifestyle and the unfortunate introduction of European diseases.”

After Blessed Serra’s death in 1784, mission populations rose and then sharply dropped. Closely knit mission communities were broken up, language was lost, cultural traditions were lost.

“The first occupants of the mission were the Tonga, called the gabrieleno by the early missionaries. Today, an active diverse parish celebrates nine Sunday Masses, five in English, three in Spanish and one in Vietnamese.

“He loved my ancestors. He loved Indians. He was in love with the idea of being a missionary here. His descriptions of my ancestors are fantastic,” he said. “I’m in love with him and I’m devoted to him.”

But not everyone shares that enthusiasm.

Galvan’s cousin and apprentice, Vincent Medina, is of a younger generation of California native people promoting and teaching their language and culture. He is one of only a handful of people who can speak and understand Chochenyo, the nearly lost tongue of the East Bay Othlone.

After studying his people from before and after Spanish colonization, Medina said he doesn’t believe Father Serra should be among those the Church names saints.

“Society for Othlone people before colonization was good,” he said. “The world before us was full of richness. It was full of complexity, it was full of beauty, the language speaks to that, the songs speak to that.

“There was ethnicicide in the missions, there was a destruction of language, there was a destruction of culture.”

Medina told CNS Blessed Serra’s canonization will only further the resentment many Indians have toward the Church.

Additionally, Medina said he views saints as people who rise above the iniquities of their time. He thinks Blessed Serra might have had better forethought and a gentler approach to sharing his faith. “He saw death, but he still kept moving forward. To me, that’s not somebody who lived outside of their era. To me, that’s somebody who’s going with the status quo of their time.”

Timeline of key events in life and ministry of Blessed Junipero Serra

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (CNS) — Here is a timeline of key points in the life, ministry and sainthood cause of Blessed Junipero Serra, the 18th-century Spanish missionary to California. Pope Francis is scheduled to canonize the Franciscan friar Sept. 23 during his visit to Washington.

1713: Born and baptized Miquel Joseph Nov. 24 in Petra on Mallorca Island in the Mediterranean Sea. His humble family lives near the Franciscan Convento de San Bernardino, where the Serras attend Mass and the young Miquel begins his studies.

1731: Joins the Franciscans, taking the name Junipero, after a companion of St. Francis of Assisi admired by young Serra as the “greatest exemplar of holy simplicity.”

1749: Receives call to report for missionary duty in the New World. Arrives in Veracruz, Mexico, Dec. 6. He and another Franciscan walk to Mexico City, a 240-mile journey. On the way, he develops a leg sore, possibly from an insect bite. The ulcer afflicts him for the rest of his life.

1752: Becomes commissioner for the Sierra mission was considered a companion of St. Francis of Assisi admired by young Serra as the “greatest exemplar of holy simplicity.”

1758: Assigned to San Saba in region now known as Texas, but his transfer is retracted and he heads back to Mexico City. Works at the College of San Fernando teaching novices and travels the countryside preaching and holding popular missions. (The appointment to San Saba mission was considered too dangerous by his superiors.)

1768:S: It is instructed to leave Baja and move north to establish missions in Alta (Upper) California.

1769: Arrives in San Diego, enters the first in a string of missions that would stretch north to Sonoma.

1776: Mission San Buenaventura is established 70 miles north of present-day Los Angeles. It’s the ninth and last Alta California mission founded under Serra’s leadership.

1782: Mission San Buenaventura is established 70 miles north of present-day Los Angeles. It’s the ninth and last Alta California mission founded under Serra’s leadership.

1784: Dies Aug. 28 at age 70 at San Carlos in Carmel.

1797: Vatican opens his cause for sainthood.

2015: In January, Pope Francis announces he will canonize Blessed Serra.

In his desire for missionary work, Blessed Serra was influenced by missionaries who came to the New World before him: St. Francis Solano, a Spanish Franciscan missionary to South America who was canonized in 1726, when Serra was 13. Credited with converting thousands of Indians.

Father Antonio Ilinas, a missionary to the Sierra Gorda region and founder of the apostolic College of Santa Cruz in Queretaro, Mexico. The institution trained scores of Franciscan missionaries.

Father Antonio Margil de Jesus, a Spanish Franciscan and missionary to Sierra Gorda and one of the first missionaries to Texas. He walked barefoot and inflicted upon himself brutal punishment and mortifications “to protect his own innocence and to approach the purity of Christ’s selfless devotion.”

Sister Maria de Jesus de Agra, whose visions and reported bilocations in New Mexico led Blessed Serra to believe that Indians would convert to Catholicism upon their first sight of Franciscans.

undercover earlier this year and released in mid-July by a nonprofit California-based organization called the Center for Medical Progress. Based on those videos, pro-life advocates gathered in South Bend and Fort Wayne as part of the 65 Women Betrayed rallies across the nation. Nearly 200 gathered outside of Sen. Joe Donnelly’s office in South Bend on Tuesday, July 28.

Jeanette Burdell, St. Joseph County Right to Life executive director, called the rally “a historic moment in the pro-life movement,” which was surging towards defunding the largest abortion provider in the world, Planned Parenthood. Indiana has already de-funded Planned Parenthood, and Indiana Gov. Mike Pence has called for an investigation.

Participants at the South Bend rally asked Sen. Joe Donnelly, a pro-life Democrat, to vote in the Senate to defund Planned Parenthood.

In an Aug. 3 vote Sen. Donnelly and Sen. Dan Coats voted to defund Planned Parenthood. The legislation would have redirected funds to thousands of federally qualified health centers nationwide that provide women’s health services and do not perform abortions. The legislation failed, 53-46.

Msgr. Michael Heintz, rector of the St. Matthew Cathedral in South Bend, gave the opening prayer at the rally. Speaker Carter Sneed, the director of the Center for Ethics and Culture at the University of Notre Dame, cut to the heart of the Planned Parenthood’s situation by quoting the mother superior of the Sisters of Life: “When you’re in the business of killing, lying is easy.”

Father Glenn Kohrman, pastor of Holy Family Parish, South Bend, concluded the rally with a prayer calling for God’s blessing the holy innocents and on all those working to end the atrocities of abortion in the nation and the world.

In Fort Wayne, approximately 500 people gathered at the Allen County Courthouse.

In two videos, top Planned Parenthood physicians describe how abortions are carried out to best safeguard fetal tissue and organs for researchers and described a range of prices paid for different body parts.

A third video was an interview with a technician talking about a company she works for harvesting and included graphic footage. As a fourth video was about to be released, the Los Angeles Superior Court July 28 issued an order blocking its release.

Cecile Richards, president of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, in a statement said that “allegations that Planned Parenthood profits in any way from tissue donation is not true.” She later apologized for “the tone” the physicians used in describing abortion procedures and also argued the videos had been heavily edited to distort the truth.

The Center for Medical Progress has posted the first three videos on its website, www.centerformedicalprogress.org.

“The recent news stories concerning Planned Parenthood direct our attention to two larger issues involving many institutions in our society,” said Cardinal O’Malley. “The first is abortion itself: a direct attack on human life, and the second is the most vulnerable condition. The second is the now standard practice of obtaining fetal organs and tissues though abortion.”

“Both actions fail to respect the humanity and dignity of human life,” he said. “This fact should be the center of attention in the present public controversy.”
Do n’t be afraid or ashamed to go to Confession, pope says

BY CINDY WOODEN

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Trusting in God’s infinite mercy, people should not be afraid or embarrassed to go to Confession, Pope Francis said.

“There are people who are afraid to go to Confession, forgetting that they will not encounter a severe judge there, but the immensely merciful Father,” Pope Francis told thousands of people gathered in St. Peter’s Square Aug. 2 for the midday recitation of the Angelus prayer.

The pope also told the people gathered under a scalding sun that “when we go to Confession, we feel a bit ashamed. That happens to all of us, but we must remember that this shame is a grace that prepares us for the embrace of the Father, who always forgives and always forgives everything.”

In his main address the pope commented on the day’s Gospel reading from the Gospel of St. John, which recounts how the crowds followed Jesus after the miracle of the multiplication of the loaves and fishes.

“Those people followed Him for the material bread that had placated their hunger the day before,” Pope Francis said. “They didn’t understand that that bread, broken for many, was the expression of the love of Jesus.”

“They gave more value to the bread than to the giver,” the pope said.

Feeding the crowd, he said, Jesus wanted to lead people to the Father and to a life that was about more than just “the daily worries of eating, dressing, success or a career.”

Every person has within him or her a hunger for life, for meaning and for eternity, Pope Francis said. Jesus satisfies that hunger with the gift of Himself on the cross and in the Eucharist.

“Jesus does not eliminate preoccupations and the search for daily bread,” the pope said. However, “Jesus reminds us that the real meaning of our earthly existence is the end — eternity — the encounter with Him, who is gift and giver.”

In giving Himself, Pope Francis said, Jesus also gives people a task: “that we, in turn, satisfy the spiritual and material hunger of our brothers and sisters by proclaiming the Gospel everywhere.”

Catholic officials, others react to Boy Scouts’ decision to allow openly gay leaders

BY MARK PATTISON

WASHINGTON (CNS) — The top leaders of the National Catholic Committee on Scouting have made an uneasy peace with the Boy Scouts of America’s decision July 27 to allow openly gay troop leaders and employees to serve in their ranks at the national level.

The Boy Scouts’ decision does not affect decisions about leaders made by local troops and councils and also permits religiously chartered Scout troops to choose leaders whose values are consistent with those of the sponsoring faith.

“It is not entirely clear how these rights will be squared with previous policy changes the Boy Scouts have made ... but it appears that the resolution respects the needs of Catholic-chartered organizations in the right to choose leaders whose character and conduct are consistent with those of Catholic teaching,” said a July 27 statement from Edward Martin, national chairman, and Father Michael Hanifin, national chaplain, for the National Catholic Committee on Scouting.

“At the same time, we express strong concern about the practical implications of this resolution, especially for our young people in Scouting, and whether the term ‘sexual orientation’ will be correctly understood and applied only in reference to sexual inclination and not to sexual conduct or behavior,” they said.

“The resolution also affirms a chartered organization’s right to select its unit leaders based on its religious principles, rejects any interference with that right, and provides that local Scout councils will not interfere with chartered organizations’ rights in this regard,” said a July 28 statement from Bishop Robert E. Guglielmone of Charleston, South Carolina. “As chartering organizations, individual parishes, institutions and Catholic schools have always had this right.”

In their statement, Martin and Father Hanifin said they also were concerned that the new resolution “artificially places a position on adult sexual conduct that does not make clear that sexual behavior should be reserved to a husband and a wife in marriage.”

They described an ‘increasingly challenging’ situation with regard to differences in religious and societal beliefs that led to the policy change, but added: “We recognize the vital importance of providing a Catholic emphasis to Catholic Scouts and Scouters seeking ways to live out their ‘duty to God.’

“Our youth don’t want to leave Scouting. ... Let’s continue this important journey together and pray for the future of Scouting!” Martin and Father Hanifin said.

About 70 percent of Boy Scout troops are run by faith-based groups.

The Mormon church, whose troops account for 17 percent of all Boy Scouts, strongly criticized the policy change.

“The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints is deeply troubled by today’s vote,” said a July 27 news release. “When the leadership of the church resumes its regular schedule of meetings in August, the century-long association with Scouting will need to be examined.”

The statement said the church has been examining alternatives, especially for Mormon boys who live in areas without a Boy Scouts presence.

The new policy was crafted by the Scouts’ top leaders, including Robert Gates, the former defense secretary who is now the Scouts’ president. According to the Scouts, 79 percent of its executive board members on a July 27 conference call approved the new policy.

The numbers of Boy Scouts has been slipping in recent years. Faced with criticism over the organization’s policies toward gays, as well as lawsuits against the Boy Scouts and declining business support, the Scouts allowed openly gay youths to join in 2013. Membership dropped 6 percent last year to 2.4 million.

The drop was attributed to departures by some evangelical churches over the 2013 policy change.

When a Boy Scouts committee unanimously recommended July 13 that the ban on gay troop leaders and employees be rescinded, the Southern Baptist Convention looked askance at the move.

Russell Moore, president of the denomination’s Ethics and Religious Liberty Commission, predicted an even greater exodus of Baptists from the Scouts, and expressed skepticism the Scouts would hold the line on protecting the rights of churches and other religious institutions.

“At every point, the Scout leadership tells us that they will go this far and no farther, but here we are again — so it’s hard for me to believe, in the long term, that the Boy Scouts will allow religious groups to have the freedom to choose their own leaders,” Moore told Baptist Press July 14. “In recent years I have seen a definite cooling on the part of Baptist churches toward the Scouts. This will probably bring that cooling to a freeze.”

WASHINGTON (CNS) — In anticipation of Pope Francis’ September visit to Washington, the Archdiocese of Washington and its Catholic Charities arm have launched an effort that challenges members of the local community to reach out to those in need. Called the “Walk With Francis Pledge,” the campaign invites people to serve others in their community and then share their pledge on social media. The pledge involves three ways to participate in that “walk”:

• Through prayer and learning about the faith: http://walkwithfrancis.org/pray.

• Through charitable service to others: http://walkwithfrancis.org/serve.

• Through taking to spread the Gospel in families, workplaces and public policy: http://walkwithfrancis.org/act.

The campaign was announced by Washington Cardinal Donald W. Wuerl and Msgr. John Enzler, president and CEO of Catholic Charities, at a July 22 news conference at the agency’s headquarters in Washington.

Cardinal Baum, longest serving U.S. cardinal, witnessed, made history

WASHINGTON (CNS) — Cardinal William W. Baum, the archbishop of Washington from 1973 to 1980, died July 23 at the age of 88 after a long illness. He was a cardinal for 39 years, the longest such tenure in U.S. Church history. Cardinal Baum witnessed history from the Second Vatican Council through the election of the first Latin American pope, and made history himself. By the spring of 2011, he had worn the red cardinal’s hat for nearly 35 years and surpassed the record of Baltimore Cardinal James Gibbons, who had been a cardinal from 1886 until his death in 1921. The soft-spoken Cardinal Baum, whom some of the Vatican’s Swiss Guards called “the gentle cardinal,” found no merit in his longevity. “It’s a gift from God,” he said. Services for Cardinal Baum will include a vigil from 5:30 p.m. July 30, at St. Matthew’s Cathedral in Washington, a vigil Mass the same day at 7 p.m. and a funeral Mass at the cathedral on July 31. Interment will be in the crypt of the cathedral. His death leaves the College of Cardinals with 200 members, 120 of whom are under the age of 80 and therefore eligible to vote in a conclave.

House limits number allowed in chamber to hear papal address to Congress

WASHINGTON (CNS) — House members voted July 28 to limit the number of people allowed in the House Chamber Sept. 24 when Pope Francis addresses a joint meeting of Congress. The vote, which was part of a procedural measure, excludes former members of Congress and former House officers and chaplains from attending the papal address. Those allowed to attend include: members of Congress, President Barack Obama and Vice President Joe Biden, Supreme Court justices, current House officers, the librarian of Congress, architect of the Capitol and department heads. The vote also approved “other persons as designated by the Speaker.” House Speaker John Boehner, R-Ohio, invited the pope and requested the vote to limit the audience. Emily Schillinger, a spokeswoman for Boehner’s office said there is “a tremendous amount of interest in the pope’s visit and we are working to ensure as many people as possible can attend.” She said the reason was “to make sure that attendance at the joint meeting does not exceed the capacity of the chamber to hold a safe and dignified event.”

Appellate panel reverses decision that favored pro-life pharmacists

PORTLAND, Ore. (CNS) — A three-judge panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals July 23 reversed a lower court ruling that had granted some pro-life pharmacists at a Ralph’s grocery store pharmacy in Washington state the right on religious grounds to refuse to stock emergency contraception or fill such prescriptions. The pharmacists say they will appeal the ruling to the full 9th Circuit. The plaintiffs are challenging Washington state pharmacy board rules that say pharmacists cannot refuse to dispense drugs they say are contrary to their conscience, nor can they refer customers to other pharmacists who will fill such prescriptions. The court rejected three specific claims lodged by the plaintiffs, who are two pharmacists and a pharmacy owner: equal protection, free exercise and due process, the last of which had been rejected by the lower court but was considered anew by the appellate court. The judicial panel held that the rules, promulgated by the Washington Pharmacy Quality Assurance Commission, were neutral on their face. One day before the rules were to take effect in 2007, the plaintiffs had sued to block their implementation.

Three auxiliary bishops named for Los Angeles; one resignation accepted

WASHINGTON (CNS) — Pope Francis has named three auxiliary bishops for the Archdiocese of Los Angeles and accepted the resignation of Auxiliary Bishop Gerald E. Wilkerson, who at age 75 is retiring. The changes were announced July 21 in Washington by Archbishop Carlo Maria Viganò, apostolic nuncio to the United States. The pope appointed two Los Angeles priests and one Chicago priest as auxiliaries.

The Chicago priest is Father Robert Barron, 55, a native of the city who has served as rector of Mundelein and president of the University of St. Mary of the Lake, also in Mundelein, Illinois, since 2012. He is the founder of the global Word on Fire Catholic Ministries and has long been involved in media ministry. Msgr. Joseph V. Mayor to promote equality, environmental protection in their cities

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Many of the mayors who met July 21 with Pope Francis stayed at the Vatican for a second day of discussions focused on city planning that promotes economic growth, equality and environmental protection simultaneously. Jeffrey Sachs, a U.S. economist and head of the Sustainable Development Solutions Network, told the mayors that Pope Francis’ call for “integral human development” matches the United Nations’ definition of sustainable development, which promotes “economic growth that is socially inclusive and environmentally sustainable.” In such an approach, he said, there is a “triple bottom line: the economic, social and environmental are on a par.” However, he said, “as Pope Francis constantly reminds us, that is not how the world works today.” Financial profit, the pope has said, seems to be the only goal and that, Sachs said, “doesn’t work for human well-being.” New York Mayor Bill de Blasio asked the mayors why people are still so committed to outdated models of economic growth when that “model of development is slowly killing us.”

“We must recommit ourselves to end death penalty, say USCCB chairmen

WASHINGTON (CNS) — The Catholic faith tradition “offers a unique perspective on crime and punishment, one grounded in mercy and healing, not punishment for its own sake,” two bishops said in a statement renewing the U.S. Catholic Church’s push to end the death penalty. “No matter how heinous the crime, if society can protect itself without ending a human life, it should do so. Today, we have this capability,” wrote Cardinal Sean P. O’Malley of Boston and Archbishop Thomas G. Wenski of Miami. The two prelates are the chairmen, respectively, of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops’ Committee on Pro-Life Activities and the Committee on Domestic Justice and Human Development. The message, dated July 16, commemorated the 10th anniversary of the bishops’ Catholic Campaign to End the Use of the Death Penalty and their message “A Culture of Life and the Penalty of Death,” which accompanied the campaign. The U.S. bishops, who have long advocated against capital punishment, began the ongoing campaign in 2005.

Pornography is sexualizing nation’s children, say speakers

WASHINGTON (CNS) — Pornography is sexualizing the innocence of the nation’s young children, causing a race to adulthood before the end of childhood. Young girls are being bombarded with photo-shopped images and are buying into unrealistic expectations set before them at an age meant for skinned knees and the Disney Channel. Those were some of the concerns raised at a Capitol Hill symposium July 14 where experts in the field of pornography research spoke about the significant negative effects the production and viewing of pornography has had on children.

Our entire culture is getting our girls porn ready,” said Grill Dines, a professor of sociology and women’s studies at Wheelock College in Boston. “It hypersexualizes them at a young age.” According to Dr. Sharon Cooper, the CEO of Development and Forensic Pediatrics, children learn from what they see, and Cordelia Anderson, founder of the Sensibilities Prevention Services, believes that “pornography is teaching young girls to be products.” “Our children are going from Dr. Seuss to porn,” said Anderson.

Lafayette bishop offers prayers in wake of theater shooting

LAFAYETTE, La. (CNS) — Bishop Michael Jarrell of Lafayette offered prayers and sympathy to the victims of a multiplex cinema shooting July 23 in Lafayette in which two were killed and nine wounded. “On behalf of the Catholic faithful of Lafayette Diocese, we offer our deepest sympathies to the families of the victims of the shooting at the Grand Theater in Lafayette, Louisiana,” Bishop Jarrell said in a July 23 statement. “We are all shocked and saddened by this tragedy. We pray that everyone affected may feel the comfort and presence of our Lord Jesus surrounding them during this difficult time.” The gunman, identified as John Russel Houser, 59, opened fire about 20 minutes into a screening of the movie “Trainwreck.” Of the 13 shots he fired, 11 hit audience members who were watching the film. There were about 300 people inside the 16-screen cinema at the time of the shooting, about 7:30 p.m. Lafayette Police said Houser had intended to blend in with the fleeing patrons, but when he saw police outside the theater, he went back inside and fatally shot himself. No motive was offered for the shooting, and police acknowledged during a July 24 news conference they may not find a motive. Police added Houser had a long history of psychiatric issues and that his wife had sought a restraining order against him in 2008. They said he had another magazine of ammunition with him at the theater to continue his shooting spree.
The Franciscan Center seeks donations

FORT WAYNE — The Franciscan Center of Fort Wayne is seeking donations for its operations after reporting a recent drop in financial assistance. An envelope is enclosed in this week’s Today’s Catholic.

The center has been in operations for 26 years and operates independently from the diocese.

Executive Director Tony Ley reports, “We have three main programs — food pantry, medicine cabinet and sack lunch program. These programs offer supplemental food, relief, health and wellness items, and our store is able to offer emergency clothing help in special cases.”

“Our sack lunch program serves over 800 individuals every week, while our food pantry serves over 350 families each week,” Ley notes.

Clients of The Franciscan Center do not fall into a particular level of income to receive services. “Our position is that if you come to us for help, we’ll offer you what we can,” Ley says.

Regarding cash flow, Ley says, “We are 75 percent donor supported, and we want to maintain our donor relationships without ‘wearing them out.’” The thrift store operated by The Franciscan Center accounts for 25 percent of their total budget. Each fall the center hosts a dinner auction night, which is scheduled Oct. 24 this year.

In addition to the monetary donations, people may assist the center with in-kind donations of food, hygiene products and other health and wellness items or offer patronage to the thrift store located at 925 E. Coliseum Blvd.

Bishop Luers makes service trip to Haiti

FORT WAYNE — The Bishop Luers High School French Club made a service trip to Haiti July 25-Aug. 5 and served in an orphanage, a school for homeless children and worked on a construction project. They visited a remote village to deliver much-needed supplies.

In preparation for the trip, the students studied the history and culture of Haiti and raised funds for the trip. In addition, each student contributed $100 to the project funds account.

Bishop Luers students hoped to witness God’s love for all of His people through the following project goals: Purchase/install an institutional grade playground at a school that serves 280 children; help supply school supplies to two schools; build plywood houses, which were built after the earthquake; support a program that gives a pair of breeding goats to needy families for milk and meat; pack and deliver hygiene kits, medical supplies and school supplies to distribute to the children and their families; meet some of the needs of an orphanage for groceries and medical supplies. Any extra funds were used to sponsor programs for orphans and homeless children to attend school.

World Youth Day registration begins; pope is first person to sign up

BY CAROL GLATZ

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Pope Francis was the first pilgrim to sign up for World Youth Day to be held in Krakow, Poland, launching the opening of registration.

Accompanied by two Polish teenagers who wore World Youth Day 2016 T-shirts, the pope had to make a couple of attempts pressing the screen of a tablet before his online registration went through.

“There, With this electronic device I have signed up for the day as a pilgrim,” he told thousands of people gathered in St. Peter’s Square July 26 for his Angelus address.

The pope said, “I wanted to be the one to open registration” in front of everyone gathered for the Angelus and in the company of two teens on the day sign-ups began July 26.

The celebrations July 26-31, 2016, will come during the Holy Year of Mercy, which Pope Francis proclaimed to invite people to follow the merciful example of God, the Father.

World Youth Day “will be, in a certain sense, a jubilee of youth” during the holy year, as its theme is also about being merciful toward others, the pope said.

God’s merciful power through Jesus “heals every ill of body and spirit,” the pope said before praying the Angelus.

Reflecting on the day’s Gospel reading, St. John’s account of the multiplication of loaves and fish, Pope Francis said the story shows how the disciples tried to find a “market”-based solution by calculating how much money they would need to feed the large, hungry crowd that had gathered by the Sea of Galilee.

“But Jesus substitutes the logic of buying with another logic, the logic of giving” when he points to the generous gift offered by the boy who offered to give all that he had: five small loaves and two fish.

Even though people could not see how such a small contribution could make a difference, “God is able to multiply our tiny gestures of solidarity and let us participate in His gift,” the pope said.

Jesus offers “fullness of life for those who hunger. He satisfies not only material hunger, but also that deeper hunger — the hunger for meaning in life, the hunger for God,” Pope Francis said.

Complaining does nothing to solve the many problems in life, but we can offer that little we have like the boy in the Gospel,” he said.

Everyone has some kind of talent or skill as well as time, he said. “If we are willing to put them in the Lord’s hands they will be enough so that there will be a little bit more love, peace, justice and above all joy in the world.”

Central Catholic graduates gather 70 years later

BY MARK WEBER

FORT WAYNE — Although they walked, rode bikes or took public transportation to high school, this was the class that ushered in the atomic age, associated high school with WWII and observed the death of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, the only U.S. president they had ever known. This was the class that at an impressionable age watched worried parents pray for siblings far away in the heat of the tropics or the frozen forests of Europe. Parents who tensed forward and stared at the family radio as battle news or any news about the armed forces came forth.

Twenty-two members out of 282 of Central Catholic’s class of ‘45 met for a reunion luncheon at the Towne House Retirement Home in Fort Wayne on Wednesday, July 22. They were joined by Bishop Kevin C. Rhoades who in his prayer before the meal asked for a blessing on those present who came from California, Kentucky, Maryland, Ohio and Indiana and the entire class including those absent and the 168 known deceased.

Jack Krouse recalled that he didn’t actually graduate; he was drafted into the Army in 1943 and spent the next 26 months playing basketball and baseball. He was then discharged, completed a GED test and received his diploma from Central Catholic.

The Mass with the Rite of Consecration to a Life of Virginity, celebrated by Bishop Kevin C. Rhoades, at the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, in parts is a reflection of an ordination, Hayes says, including the calling of the candidate, liturgy of the Word, prostration for the litany of saints, statement of intentions and the prayer for consecration. Hayes will be adorned in a wedding dress as a bride of Christ. She will be presented with a veil, a ring and the Liturgy of the Hours and take a vow of lifelong virginity. “I’m giving myself in a way that I can’t take back. It’s total, it’s complete, it’s a public confession. This is what my role is in the Church,” she says. Several supportive Women’s Conception students will be involved in the ceremony with two reading, four presenting the gifts and six will be handing out programs.

Becoming a consecrated virgin is primarily a spiritual change, she says. In addition to her daily prayer life, Hayes will be of service to others and her parish on behalf of the diocese. How she will serve will be discerned with the bishop, who is her superior.

Services to the faith community Hayes has previously included teaching classes for the Poor Clare Sisters and assisting with St. Vincent de Paul Parish LifeTeen program. Her involvement at St. Vincent de Paul, Fort Wayne, her home parish, include serving as choir member, RCIA instructor and teaching in different capacities.

At Bishop Dwenger, Hayes teaches theology and a class on the dignities of women as well as being involved with the Saints for Life pro-life student group. She was cross-country and track coach for many years.

A self professed “later in life vocation” Hayes says, “This will be my final and only vows, so a lot of the preparation in the spiritual life was done on my own leading up to that point.” That preparation included “an awful lot of silence and solitude in my prayer life. I already had a good foundation for the spiritual life but what I hadn’t had up to that point were good tools for discerning my vocation.”

She has found that for women, unless actively pursuing a religious order, there is no specific direction for those interested in a religious vocation. She plans to address that void especially in her classes in hopes of facilitating change in the future.

Taking the time to investigate all the states in life available to her — religious life, married life, singleness — and discerning the positives and subjective negatives brought her to an awareness of her call. “Being able to articulate where I was happiest and discern what God was asking of me by those desires of my heart,” she says.

This unique vocation is of great value to the Church, says Hayes. “A consecrated virgin is the image of the Church. She is one that is receiving all that she is from Christ — her very identity. It’s a sign that all of us are called to be open to the will of God.”

The Mass with the Rite of Consecration to a Life of Virginity, celebrated by Bishop Kevin C. Several supportive Women’s Conception students will be involved in the ceremony with two reading, four presenting the gifts and six will be handing out programs.

Following her consecration the cadence of her prayer life will include the liturgy of the hours, daily Mass and recitation of the rosary. “It’s being committed to the prayers of the Church,” she says, adding she prays daily morning, evening and night prayers.

This life of consecrated virginity is not like that of a single woman. She will no longer do whatever she wants with her time, money and freedom, but rather as someone married to Christ. All the decisions about life and all that she has is and are always considered in the life of Christ. Hayes is humbled and grateful for the opportunity to live out God’s call on her life as a consecrated virgin and says, “My hope is for greater faithfulness in living the Christian life and surrendering each day my will to God’s will. And with that holiness the ability then to love as Christ loved; “It’s a pretty simple life,” says Hayes joyfully, adding, “it’s very happy, but pretty simple.”

Quick facts about a consecrated virgin

- Consecrated virginity is the oldest recognized form of consecrated life in the Catholic Church, predating religious life by centuries.
- Well-known consecrated virgins from the early Church include the martyrs St. Agnes, St. Agatha, St. Cecilia and St. Lucy. Contemporary consecrated virgins include Blessed Kateri Tekakwitha.
- Consecrated virginity is one of the only forms of women’s consecrated life, which involves a deep spiritual bond with the local Church, unlike religious sisters who leave their diocese to live in community.
- Consecrated virgins are called to dedicate their lives to prayer for and service to, their home diocese.
- Where religious vows are essentially promises that an individual actively makes to God, consecration to a life of virginity is a solemn promise for the opportunity to live out a consecrated life with all the states in life available to her.

St. Mary the Assumption, Decatur celebrates 175 years

By Tim Johnson

DECATUR — There is a celebration of faith at St. Mary of the Assumption Parish in Decatur — a celebration of 175 years. But first, the planners of the parish had to consider, just when the celebration should begin.

St. Mary parishioner Louise Wolpert chairs the 175th Anniversary Committee and Roxyann Casper serves as secretary. Wolpert, who is also the county historian and works at the library, discovered the parish celebrated its centennial in 1938. The first Mass celebrated in Decatur was in 1838. However, the 150th anniversary of the parish was celebrated in 1990. On Nov. 12, 1840, the congregation was named St. Mary of the Assumption as Mass had been celebrated in homes, a tavern and even in the first framed courthouse. The first church was dedicated in 1847.

So the committee made up of several parishioners celebrated the 175th by honoring both dates and included activities for the last two years, beginning with Mass on the feast of the Assumption in 2013 and ending with the feast of the Assumption (Aug. 15) this year. Bishop Kevin C. Rhoades will celebrate at 1 p.m. Mass at St. Mary on Aug. 16 to close the celebration.

“St. Mary of the Assumption Parish stands upon the shoulders of all who have shown forth the Light of Christ and the Catholic faith in the Decatur community for the past 175 years,” described Father David Voors, who is the pastor of the parish with 1,227 registered families. “St. Mary’s is blessed in its long history and continues to proclaim the values of Jesus Christ. Our vitality comes from the same source as it has for the past 175 years, namely, being empowered by Sunday Mass, God’s Word and sacraments, and our desire to take on the likeness of Christ. Our parish is great not because of one or two members — but because of all.”

And St. Mary of the Assumption has many ways for “all” to form a community of faith.

Parishioner Roxyann Casper said the parish is “so blessed” with Father Voors as pastor. The parish is also served by Vincentian Congregation Father Jose Panamattathil as parochial vicar.

Known for his prayerfulness, Father Voors initiated the recitation of the Hail Mary at the end of every Mass for peace or Father Voors’ designation. The parish offers Eucharistic Exposition Monday through Wednesday, 4:30-6 p.m., Thursday from 8:45-9:45 a.m. and 4:30-8 p.m.

“He has really focused our parish on prayer life,” noted Casper. During the 175th anniversary, the

The St. Mary’s Heritage Fund was created through the collaboration and commitment that has made St. Mary’s pastor, Father Tom O’Connor, and parishioners using money received from fire insurance on the historic church and its inception. The $3.9 million St. Mary’s Heritage Fund has awarded annual grants totaling $3,897,857.88 from interest gained on the fund’s principal.

Saint Anne Communities promotes staff leadership roles, rewards dedication

FORT WAYNE. Saint Anne Communities is restructuring its organizational chart to better accommodate its recent expansion. In July, Saint Anne added a second campus, the former Catholic Charities Villa of the Woods retirement community.

David Deffenbaugh, the current administrator for Saint Anne, is being promoted to the dual role of administrator and chief operating officer.

Corrina Rees, the current director of nursing, is being promoted to the dual role of director of nursing and chief nursing officer.

“These changes reflect the growth and development of Saint Anne,” says Deacon James Fitzpatrick, a member of the Saint Anne corporate board. “Saint Anne has been a very stable, care-driven organization for many years. With the addition of Villa of the Woods, Saint Anne has the opportunity to expand its mission, and this restructuring of responsibilities will better facilitate that.”

“From a nursing standpoint, Saint Anne provides a high level of care, and maintaining those high standards is a lot of hard work,” Deacon Fitzpatrick continues. “As Corrina Rees leads the expansion of nursing services to a second campus, she’ll need time to focus on the big picture, and that will give Saint Anne’s other talented nursing professionals a chance to grow. “It’s also important that Saint Anne maintains strong financial planning,” Fitzpatrick adds. “New rules and regulations have made the world of reimbursement and managed care so much more complex, creating a greater challenge to maintaining a plan that will responsibly meet the needs of our current and future residents.”

Deffenbaugh says he’s energized by the current changes at Saint Anne. “This is an interesting time to be part of Saint Anne as we reach out to serve an even larger segment of older adults in the area, and that Corrina and Mike share my commitment to building upon Saint Anne’s reputation for excellence as we grow.”

Rees remarks about the opportunity to bring Saint Anne’s high-quality senior care to Villa of the Woods. “I’m very excited about the change — I think we’re on the right track,” she says. “I’m especially looking forward to helping the staff at our new campus, and I’m excited to establish their nursing services.”

In his new role, Rorick will also have more time to see the big picture. “Changes to health-care coverage over the last few years, including the Affordable Care Act, have made it necessary to do more with less,” he says. “We have to keep a close eye on costs as we balance being a faith-based organization. In my new position, I’ll have more time for planning.”

A ministry of the Diocese of Fort Wayne-South Bend, Saint Anne Communities is a state-licensed provider of health care and retirement-living options. With campuses at 1900 Randallia Dr. and 5610 Noll Ave. in Fort Wayne, Saint Anne offers a continuum of care that includes independent and assisted living, skilled nursing care, and memory care for any organization,” says David Deffenbaugh. “Our goal and values mirror those of Saint Anne. We’re both faith-centered and family-focused, so it’s a perfect fit, and our residents will be well taken care of. When we began meeting various staff members from Saint Anne, we discovered what truly wonderful and caring individuals they are. This confirmed that we were off to a great start.”

“I see nothing but the positive in our future — more services for residents, building updates, and the addition of more care staff,” Rorick says. “When I inform individuals, businesses and stakeholders of our change, I hear nothing but positive comments on how Saint Anne has cared for a loved one.”

A Fort Wayne native, Rorick graduated from Fort Wayne Concordia Senior High School and earned a bachelor’s degree in secondary education at Indiana University. She started working in a Villa part time right out of college, in addition to serving as a substitute teacher and working at a movie theatre. It wasn’t long before she made the Villa her career choice and joined the staff full time as the activities and social services director. Rorick belongs to the Holy Trinity Greek Orthodox Church. Her free time is spent with family and friends and traveling.

Saint Anne Communities promotes six staff members

Saint Anne Communities has promoted six key staff members as the organization begins to provide health care and living options to a second campus in the former Catholic Charities Villa of the Woods. In several cases, these promotions are to new positions, and within Saint Anne’s restructured organizational chart. “Having the right people in the right places is a key to success for any organization,” says David Deffenbaugh. “These six staff members have consistently demonstrated the kind of expertise and commitment that has made Saint Anne a premiere provider of retirement-living options and senior care. We’re very happy to have the opportunity to reward these individuals for their dedication.”

The six latest promotions include: Tyler Weible, promoted to assistant administrator; Tracy Schultz, promoted to residential living director; Julie Hartman, promoted to environmental services director; Anne Budenz, promoted to care transition director; Jessica Wallace, promoted to human resources director; and Amanda Smith, promoted to assistant director of nursing.
Youth discover mercy matters at summer camp

BY DENISE FEDOROW

MILFORD — For a group of fourth, fifth and sixth graders in the Diocese of Fort Wayne-South Bend, a week at summer camp included not only the usual canoeing, campfires and cabin bunking but also daily Mass, Scripture study and praise and worship music.

The Fifth Annual Catholic Youth Summer Camp was held July 26-31 at Camp Mack in Milford. This year’s theme was “Mercy Matters” based on Luke 6:36: “Be merciful as your Father is merciful.”

Twenty-one parishes were represented at the camp among the 44 campers — 14 of whom were returning campers. Twenty volunteer staff made the camp possible. CYSC is sponsored by three parishes — St. Vincent de Paul in Fort Wayne, St. Jude in South Bend and Sacred Heart in Lakelville.

Dave and Jan Torma, camp directors, said the camp is the culmination of many years of work. “But it was all in God’s time,” Jan said.

This year each group’s campsite was named for a place where saints who are associated with mercy once lived “just like the Israelites,” Jan said. Each campsite flew a flag depicting the city where the saint lived. “All of us kids helped each other. We grew up together. We took care of the babies,” she said, adding that Mother Teresa taught them to value going to church no matter how difficult.

“Mother Teresa helped us to get things from the garden,” she told the kids. “In the orphanage she taught us to value everything we have right here so when we leave the country we’ll be grateful and always be blessed.”

“Everywhere I go, I see her,” Nguyen said. “She was a great saint.”

A Mother Teresa Story

MILFORD — The spirit of Blessed Mother Teresa was very evident at Catholic Youth Summer Camp this summer with several providential happenings. First, the choice of Calcutta as one of the campsites, then camper Maggie Nguyen who gravitated right towards that group without knowing where she was assigned. Her response was, “My mother’s from Calcutta so I have to be here.”

Maggie’s mother was actually an orphan in one of the orphanages run by Mother Teresa and she happened to stop by camp to drop something off. Camp Director Jan Torma asked if she would speak to the campers while she was there. Lalita Nguyen said she knew Mother Teresa from the time she was five years old and said she was a gentle woman.

“All of us kids helped each other. We grew up together. We took care of the babies,” she said, adding that Mother Teresa taught them to value going to church no matter how difficult.

“She was so gentle. She always taught us never to leave anyone behind because they are different. She always said, ‘please, thank you and I love you,’” she explained.

“Mother Teresa helped us to get things from the garden,” she told the campers. “In the orphanage she taught us to value everything we have right here so when we leave the country we’ll be grateful and always be blessed.”

“Everywhere I go, I see her,” Nguyen said. “She was a great joy and she was so good to us.”

The sixth-grade boys in Campsite Auriesville (New York) at Catholic Youth Summer Camp held at Camp Mack in Milford arranged their suitcases in the form of a cross as part of a daily cabin inspection for cleanliness and spiritual themes. Their cabin was the winner of the award for that day.

“Mercy Matters” based on Luke 6:36: “Be merciful as your Father is merciful.”

During the course of the week the campers were learning about the corporal and spiritual works of mercy, and Dave Torma set up an obstacle course based on the theme. He explained that originally the obstacle course was created to act as filler between activities but it’s evolved to be a daily activity centered around the camp’s theme.

Although not all 14 of the spiritual and corporal works of mercy were conveyed in the obstacle course, many of them were. For example, one station had a pot of gold where the campers were encouraged to deposit $1, representing giving alms. Another station had a tri-pod where the campers were asked to place a shirt over the tri-pod to shelter the homeless. At another station the campers put on a “hoodie” then took it off and donated it to represent clothing the naked. There were food items to be deposited into a St. Vincent de Paul collection to feed the hungry and a journal where the campers were asked to write “7 x 70” to represent forgiveness.

“The kids have to discover the work of mercy each represents,” Dave said. “We don’t tell them, they have to figure it out.”

Awards were presented to the girl and boy who completed the course the fastest each day and were announced at the campfire.
KENTUCKY PRIEST DELIVERS THANKS

Father Joseph N. Koury, Jr., pastor of two parishes in eastern Kentucky that have received temporal assistance in the form of household goods, clothing and hygienic supplies in an outreach program directed by St. Joseph-Hessen Cassel Parish in Fort Wayne, expressed gratitude personally at an evening Mass at St. Joseph on Wednesday, July 22, that was followed by a reception attended by donors. Shown in the front row with Father William Kummer, pastor of St. Joseph-Hessen Cassel, is Father Koury, right and, back row, St. Joseph parishioners Sue and David Kistner, who have managed the Help from Hessen Cassel efforts since since 2011.

Campers’ views

Campers shared that they were enjoying the spiritual aspect of their camp experience but also enjoying regular camp activities.

One fun activity the sixth-grade girls were engaged in was called “Flying Squirrels.” Someone is put in a harness and a team pulls a rope to lift the person up to the trees. Campers, egged on by Camp Mack’s program director Curt Rowland, left their counselors up in the air a little bit longer.

The fifth-grade girls in Campsite Calcutta shared some of their favorite parts of camp. Maggie Nguyen, whose mom was actually an orphan in one of Mother Teresa’s orphanages in Calcutta shared that she liked the “counselors, friends and all the activities.”

Hannah Matthews enjoyed “swimming and the chance to go to church every day and do readings.”

Sydney Kaiser mentioned the aqua slide and the camp choirs and the girls shared a few of their favorite camp songs.

Some of the sixth-grade boys also shared what they enjoyed most. Erik Nunez said, “The gaga bowl, the aqua slide and oh yeah, archery, too!”

Jose Luis Pimentel said, “turtles” and other boys mentioned the bouncy house, the climbing wall, campfires, snorkeling and fishing.

Jan Torma said that all the fish that week by the campers was saved and filleted for a fish fry at the end of the week.

Every day cabins were inspected for cleanliness and also a spiritual theme and an award was given each night to the best-kept cabin. A visit to the sixth-grade boys’ cabin showed towels hung straight to dry, not a speck of dirt to be found, suitcases arranged in the form of a cross with rosaries and journals on top and CYSC 2015 spelled out with camp T-shirt. “We teach a lot of life skills here, too,” Jan said.

The Tormas praised their volunteer staff and expressed appreciation to all who support and donate to make the camp possible. Even though there is a fee for the campers to attend, it doesn’t cover all of the costs. Many of the staff voluntarily offer a week of their vacation to be at the camp.

“The counselors make the camp,” Dave said. “We can put together a good program, but it’s the counselors and their connection to the kids who make it work.”

Jn 6:41-51

The First Book of Kings provides this weekend’s Liturgy of the Word with its first biblical reading.

As the name implies, the kings of Israel are the central figures in these books, however prominence is given the prophets, such as Elijah in this weekend’s reading. He lived during the half of the ninth century B.C.

In the reading, Elijah is weary and discouraged. He even asks God to take his life. Then, he fell asleep. When he awoke, a harnessed cart and a plow were at his side. He ate, drank and was refreshed.

Then an angel came, revealing that this sustenance was from God, and ordered Elijah to continue his journey. Strengthened by God’s food, Elijah obeyed, finally arriving at the mountain of God, Horeb.

The second reading this weekend is from the Epistle to the Ephesians. A context surrounds all the episodes. First, living the Gospel of Jesus was not easy in the first century. A.D. Christians faced temptations from “the world, the flesh and the devil” at every side. Christians in Ephesus faced a special challenge. Not only did they live in a thriving seaport and commercial center with all the vice and distraction usually associated with such centers, but Ephesus was a major tourist shrines. Pilgrims to its goddess, thronged the city.

The Ephesians to rid themselves of all bitterness and anger, and to rise above gossip and malice. On the positive side, it calls upon them to be compassionate and forgiving, noting that God had forgiven them.

St. John’s Gospel is the source of the last reading. Jesus declares, “I am the bread that comes down from heaven.” The audience does not accept this phrase well. They spurn Jesus. The Lord then enters upon a discourse, one of the most significant passages in the New Testament. He is the only access to God for humans. He will rise to new life “on the third day.” It is important to note, when these words were spoken, the crucifixion was in the future.

Finally, the Lord says, “I am the bread of life.” Myself, I am the living bread.” Anyone who consumes this bread attains everlasting life.

We must keep our goal in sight

We must keep our goal in sight. I you have ever been in atrial fibrillation you know that your heart rate is at least 140 beats per minute. A quick swag tells you your heart rate is too fast. You may not feel anything at all, but your heart is going very fast.

Atrial fibrillation (A-fib) is the most common arrhythmia that cardiologists see. Almost every time I am on call for my cardiology group I see a case of two. Many will investigate the etiology and find no cause, but there is a variety of reasons and medical problems that can cause A-fib.

One cause is an undiagnosed heart valve abnormality. We always get an echocardiogram to see if there is a problem like a leaky or narrowed valve. It will also tell us if there is a cardiomyopathy present (weak left ventricle), which is also in the differential diagnosis and is associated with cardiac arrhythmias like A-fib. An overactive thyroid (hyperthyroidism) is another cause and with effective treatment of the thyroid condition the atrial fibrillation will resolve. The older you are the more likely that you may experience A-fib. At age 80 one study discovered 9 percent of the population has paroxysmal, persistent, or permanent A-fib. The young are also not spared from experiencing this arrhythmia. I have seen it many times in the 20-40 age group. Sometimes it is related to using stimulants like coffee or energy drinks. I am sometimes amazed at finding out that the patient I am seeing in A-fib slugged down 10 cups of coffee that day and threw in a “5 hour energy” as well. Some small alcohol enthusiasts have a higher risk of presenting in atrial fibrillation either during their binge drinking or soon thereafter. In fact, this has a special name “Holiday Heart Syndrome” that was coined by one of my mentors at Ohio State University where I trained.

New Year’s weekend always seem to have a high incidence of A-fib presentations that lives up the already busy emergency room that day.

The treatment plan for new onset atrial fibrillation is a little more complicated than the scope of this article, but if we find the cause then that’s what needs treated to try to prevent or at least control future episodes. The most common complication of A-fib is stroke. When the left atrium is in fibrillation it is not contracting and efficiently moving blood into the left ventricle. The left atrium is basically just shaking, making blood move sluggish and clots can form. These small clots can move out of the heart and head up to your brain causing a stroke. Actually, about one out of every four strokes is caused by A-fib. A good percentage of people can go into A-fib and not experience palpitations or enough symptoms to even know they are out of rhythm. These are the same people who can present with a stroke first and then the diagnosis of atrial fibrillation is made. If you have frequent episodes of A-fib or have permanent A-fib your doctor will likely recommend anticoagulation.

The most common treatment between the mainstay for decades but now we have four new novel anticoagulants that have been proven to be good or better than Coumadin. One huge advantage of these new agents is that they do not require any regular blood tests like Coumadin does. The downside is that if you don’t have good insurance they can be very expensive.

There is a recent medical conference named “The Epidemic of Atrial Fibrillation.” Nobody quite knows why we are seeing so much more A-fib than ever before.

A recent study proved regular meditation can actually reduce the incidence of atrial fibrillation. That sounds like prayer to me. We can all agree that prayer is good for the soul but it also looks like it may be good for the body as well. Imagine your doctor prescribing a daily rosary as preventive medicine. Or, even better yet for the doctor at 2 a.m. “Say a rosary and call me in the morning!”

Reflection

All of us can identify with Elijah, the prophet of whom we heard in the reading from First Kings. Whatever the circumstance, life for each of us can be tiring and distressing. Any of us can be reduced to desperation, as was Elijah.

Today and always, the Church speaks with great confidence and reassurance.

First, it recalls us, through the first reading, that God sustains and strengthens us. He sustained and strengthened Elijah. The prophet was no dearer to God than we are. Secondly, God has given us Jesus, the Son of God, Jesus is in our midst. He is in our world. He shares human nature with us. Born of Mary, a human, Jesus is as human as we. Jesus is indeed the “bread of life.” Aptly this reading is associated with the Eucharist. The food given mercifully by God is more than material food, composed of bread and wine. It is divine food, the Body and Blood of the Lord. It nourishes our souls.

As disciples, we must continue our long walk to the mountain of God. More often than not we will be traveling uphill, but we must keep our goal in sight, life with God. He will give us the strength we require. He awaits us with everlasting life and peace.

Lydia is first century feast - Aug 3

Lydia’s name is taken from her place of origin, Thyatira in the province of Lydia (now Turkey). Paul’s first convert in Philippi, Lydia is mentioned once in the Bible: Acts 16:13-15. Luke calls her “a dealer in purple cloth” and “a worshipper of God.” After listening to Paul, she and her household were baptized. One of the few women in Luke to speak, she says Paul and his companions, “If you consider me a believer in the Lord, come and stay at my home.” Lydia asks that “she prevailed on us.” This patron saint of dyers may have been a merchant in luxury goods or a former slave working in a textile guild, but her household’s income could support guests.
The consequences of the pill and same-sex marriage

Many people have expressed surprise at the speed with which same-sex unions went from being a crime and a sin to being a constitutional right. Exactly 50 years ago, the United States Supreme Court decided that married couples had a constitutional right to prescription contraceptives. (The FDA had approved the pill just five years earlier.) In 1971, the Supreme Court ruled that single people had the same right.

The Economist called the pill the most important scientific advance of the 20th century. It certainly changed the way we live, too. It also paved the road for the Supreme Court’s decision in Obergefell v. Hodges, the same-sex marriage case.

Before the pill was readily available, sex and children and lifelong commitment were all part of one contract. Sex naturally led to children, and you could be sure that’s what you wanted. People understood (and still do) that children need to grow up in stable and permanent families.

So closely were the three things (sex, children, marriage) tied together that sex was referred to as the “marital act.” This was our social practice, enforced by notions of virtue, counsel of prudence, legal rules and social taboos. The pill allowed us to split what once was one contract into three. Today, there is no necessary connection between sex and children. And if there are no children in prospect, sex needn’t lead to marriage. It might be just a pleasing form of recreation. Even within marriage, children are now a matter for negotiation.

All this has had predictable effects. The idea that there is a virtue (chastity) connected with how and when we have sex seems almost quaint. Instead, we have radio and TV personalities like Dr. Ruth Westheimer encouraging us to have “good sex,” part of the name of her show.

Young people are certainly taking her advice, but they are no longer getting married. The Pew Research Center recently reported that 69 percent of young adults (age 18 to 24) believe “society is just as well off if people have priorities other than marriage and children.”

For almost half of women age 15-44, cohabitating was their first union, not marriage, according to a report by the National Center for Health Statistics. The same report showed that informal relationships don’t usually last — the median duration of a first cohabitation is 22 months.

Elizabeth Anscombe, a British analytic philosopher, presciently observed, back in 1972, that “if sexual union can be deliberately and totally divorced from fertility, then we may wonder why sexual union has got to be married union.”

Indeed, she said, if we disconnect sex from children “there is no reason why ... marriage should have to be between people of opposite sexes.” She was right on both counts. The fracturing of our sexual contracts brought about by the pill has led us to reframe same-sex marriage as an issue of equality and discretion, not of children and societal health.

Is there any chance of getting our culture to embrace, once again, the Catholic view about sexual relations between men, or between women? I don’t think so, unless we see an equally revolutionary change in the behavior of heterosexual couples. Unless they themselves recover the virtue of chastity — unless they view sex as necessarily connected to marriage and fertility — they have no moral warrant for imposing it on their gay friends.

OSV to offer pastoral resources for the Jubilee Year of Mercy

HUNTINGTON — Our Sunday Visitor has been selected by the Vatican as the exclusive worldwide English-language publisher of the eight official books for the upcoming Jubilee Year of Mercy declared by Pope Francis.

Produced by the Pontifical Council for the Promotion of the New Evangelization at the request of Pope Francis, the eight books are intended as resources for all Catholics to grow in understanding and appreciation of mercy in Scripture, liturgy, the sacraments and Church teaching. The books are for both individual Catholics and parishes to study the theme of mercy further.

In declaring a Year of Mercy, Pope Francis has called on the faithful to “echo the word of God that resounds strong and clear as faithful to “echo the word of God’s mercy and shows how to embody mercy in our lives. The series identifies ways mercy is exemplified in the liturgy, Scripture, the teachings of the Fathers of the Church and the popes, the witness of saints, and how it is present in corporal and spiritual works and the sacrament of Reconciliation.

The titles of the eight books, which will be available this fall in advance of the Holy Year, are: “Celebrating Mercy”; “The Psalms of Mercy”; “The Parables of Mercy”; “Mercy in the Fathers of the Church”; “The Saints of Mercy”; “Mercy in the Teachings of the Popes”; “The Corporal and Spiritual Works of Mercy”; and “The Sacrament of Reconciliation and the Experience of Mercy.”

Every title in the series carries the official logo of the Holy Year, designed by Jesuit Father Marko Rupnik, showing the image of Christ taking upon his shoulders the lost soul — wrapped with the jubilee motto “Merciful like the Father.” The graphic symbolizes the Father’s mercy toward all, as the incarnate Christ touches humanity and exudes power to change lives.

Pope Francis established the Extraordinary Jubilee year of Mercy from the solemnity of the Immaculate Conception (Dec. 8, 2015) through the solemnity of Christ the King (Nov. 20, 2016). An “extraordinary jubilee year” — of which there have been only 26 in Church history (the last being the Great Jubilee in 2000) — falls outside the regular rhythm of jubilees celebrated every quarter-century. A jubilee is offered as a path for reunion with God, and is called for a special occasion or event of particular importance. It is a year of forgiveness of sins coupled with the special pardon of temporal punishment for them. As a time of renewed conversion, it places great emphasis on reception of the sacrament of Reconciliation.

Our Sunday Visitor offers a 50 percent discount for the purchase of the entire eight-book bundle, bringing the cost to $39.95.

A message from Catholic Cemetery...

The Board of Directors and the staff of our sacred Catholic Cemetery is committed to maintaining the natural beauty of each and every garden within the cemetery. Therefore, the maintenance staff will soon begin removing the shrubbery that forms the Cross in garden “F” within the cemetery and will be replacing them with dwarf burning bushes later this Fall.

We ask you for your understanding during this process and assure you that when the landscaping is complete the garden’s beauty will exceed your expectations, especially during the Fall season when these shrubs turn their natural red color.

Please call Casey Miller at 426-2044 if you have any questions.
